February 25, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Evergreen Park Home Protection Pros has announced that they are expanding their home protection services to the customers in Evergreen Park, Illinois. The company offers a full range of home security services, including home monitoring systems, security evaluations, and more. A full list of their services can be seen on their company website at <https://evergreenparkhomeprotectionpros.business.site>.

A representative for the company states, "We are pleased to be bringing our full range of products and services to customers in Evergreen Park. Home security is something that everyone should take seriously, and it is our goal to help homeowners to secure their homes against all sorts of invasions and other issues."

The company says that they offer full evaluations to help homeowners to determine if their current systems are enough or if they need additional services. The company representative states that they provide homeowners with free quotes for video monitoring and other security system aspects, and that they work individually with customers as no two homes are alike.

"Not everyone needs the same security systems," says the company representative. "This is why we work with homeowners and help them to determine the specific systems or services that they need. Homeowners can visit any home improvement store and find a full range of system and system aspects but unless they know what they need, none of these systems is going to help."

The company works with various subscription services, like ADT, to provide monitoring of their systems. Subscription services link to home security systems and are often the first alerted to any issues involving the home. The company states that having a subscription can cut down significantly on the amount of time that it takes to alert the needed authorities of a home issue. Studies show that home invasions are at an all-time high, particularly in certain states. Midwestern states have seen a significant climb in the number of home invasions over the past decade, and the company spokesperson says that this fact alone should alert homeowners that they need some sort of security system in place. Home security systems often entail video monitoring that can be done from a laptop or smartphone, which helps homeowners to keep an eye on their homes even when they are away.

These systems also often include sensors that are installed on doors and windows. When the door or window is opened, the sensor will emit a sound that is designed to frighten off an invader. When a subscription service is used in collaboration with the home security system, the sensor will alert the subscription service who will then contact the homeowner or the authorities to let them know that someone may be attempting to enter the home without the homeowner's knowledge. The company representative states that many homeowners even use video surveillance within the home to keep an eye on babysitters or nannies to ensure that their children are being cared for properly.

The company states that homeowners should take the time to learn more about home security systems and the benefits that they can offer. Many home insurance carriers provide discounts on home insurance coverage for those who have certain security measures in place. The company states that a comparison of systems is ideal for helping the homeowner to get the security coverage that they need that fits within their budget.
