Noble Home Goods, a Castle Rock, CO company, has recently announced its introduction of a trendy new handheld shower head for the home. The patented shower head utilizes laser perforated technology to create over 200 holes in the stainless steel panel, which results in consistent uniform water flow. Due to the laser technology, the shower head is eco-friendly and uses 50% less water, while also producing increased water pressure.

"Filtered shower heads are becoming more popular. This shower head encompasses features that will most likely become the favored way to take a shower," says Kimberly Noble of Noble Home Goods, whose credentials can be viewed at <http://www.noblehomegoods.com/>.

Water is filtered through a layer of Weak Acid Beauty Beads. Water filtered through these beads reduces over 30 mineral substances such as selenium, magnesium, zinc, iron, phosphorus, calcium and potassium; these minerals can leave skin dry. The beauty beads filtering process results in water that has fewer minerals and therefore is more PH balanced. Long term use of the purified water can result in much smoother skin.

The shower head is a standard fit and does not require specialized tools for installation. Shower settings include relaxing rainfall, invigorating massage, or a combination of the two. The handle is polycarbonate and is break resistant.

"It's great," says Tim L. of the new shower head. "The massage feature is so relaxing and it was a breeze to install. I didn't even need a power tool."

Noble Home Goods has been supplying quality products for the kitchen, bath, and other areas of the home for a number of years. They offer only products that they personally use in their own homes. The new shower head from Noble Home Goods is available on Amazon and can be viewed at <http://www.amazon.com/dp/B00YQ43GNY>.
