Future Restored is a company based in Dublin, Ohio, that helps to connect those in need of addiction recovery services with the appropriate facilities. The company states that they are excited to provide the best resources for discovering addiction recovery services around the nation. Those who are interested can learn about Future Restored by visiting them online.

A representative for the company says, "Addiction is a very real issue that is steadily growing worse in the United States every year. Our aim is to offer resources to those in need of recovery and to connect them with facilities that are hand picked for them. We don't just match someone to a facility that happens to have a bed open. We match those in need of recovery to the specific facility that will best serve their needs."

American Addiction Centers states that according to a 2014 survey from the National Survey on Drug Use and Health, more than 21 million Americans, aged 12 and older, were addicted to some sort of substance in that year. Studies show that these numbers are increasing on an annual basis. The study further states that nearly 80 percent of those who suffered from addiction in 2014, struggled with alcohol addiction, and one out of every eight people who suffered from drug addiction also suffered from alcohol abuse.

"These numbers are staggering," says the representative for Future Restored. "And they are climbing every year. Drug abuse costs society as a whole nearly $200 billion in healthcare and legal costs every year. We have to do something, and we have to do it now."

According to the World Health Organization, the global burden of medical issues that are related to alcohol and drug abuse are more than 5 percent. Future Restored states that this is not just a problem in the United States, but a worldwide problem that needs to be addressed.

The company provides resources and information for those who want to find a rehab center in their area or to deal with specific issues. The company representative states that they have access to thousands of facilities throughout the United States, and that they work with those in need of recovery to find the right place for them based on a number of personal needs and preferences. Whatever the level of addiction or the substance, Future Restored can help those in need to find a rehabilitation facility that can help them to recover. The company has access to a number of facilities based on personal need, such as those that deal with transgender or alternative lifestyle patients, as well as general facilities that may be close in location to the addicted.

The company states that the first step to finding a recovery center is to visit them online and schedule an informal interview. During the interview, the company learns more about the unique set of circumstances of each patient and provides a treatment solution that meets those circumstances. Qualified and experienced counselors are available to help explain the entire process to those in need, including the admissions process, the guidelines and services offered and the fees that are involved with recovery. The company states that they can advise patients on insurance and other payment options, as well.

Future Restored was founded by a team of mental health and general health professionals, along with military veterans. The company's mission is to help consumers to find the rehabilitation center that is right for them and their individual needs. The team states that they conduct research using a proprietary algorithm that uses a number of factors to find the perfect rehab center for each patient in need. Those who are interested or would like to learn more or those currently addicted to substances or their families can visit the company online to find information related to taking the first step to recovery. Future Restored can be contact via phone or email with questions.
