NXR Global, a business in Mechanicsville, VA, has recently released their VStream TV product, which can be seen on <http://www.nomorecabletvbills.com>. Essentially, the product has been designed to help people save money on their cable TV bills by offering them an alternative way of receiving all their favorite channels. Described as the 'cut your cable revolution', it is hoped that more people will be encouraged to sign up for the service.

NXR Global's Jerry Moore says: "Our Vstream TV product has a range of different features. For instance, people can watch all the different live TV shows, past and present, without having to watch commercials. They can get over 100,000 movies, including the latest releases. It also comes with music channels and all the live sporting events!"

Very simply put, it is a smart TV box that streams in high definition. There are no monthly fees and no contracts to sign. People simply purchase the receiver and they will be ready to stream all their favorite TV channels, watching movies, shows, sports and more, including 3D movies, all in HD quality.

Because the box uses streaming, the selection of movies is literally unlimited. Whether people are looking for a classic black and white John Wayne movie, or the latest XMen movie in 3D, it's all there. Additionally, the VStream TV box is also able to stream every single show there is from the night it first airs on television. It is even possible to view adult channels, but with parental controls.

"Another benefit of the system", adds Jerry Moore, "is that you can even make money by referring other people to the product. This means that it effectively pays for itself."

Considering the average cable bill is $83 a month, which is without any extras, this box indeed does pay for itself. Indeed, HBO is $10 per month, Streampix is $5 a month, TIVO is $13 a month, Netflix is $8 a month, Amazon Prime is $6 a month. None of that takes into consideration on demand rentals and red box rentals. Thanks to the VStream TV, none of this is of any concern anymore.
