Athens, GA based solar company, Savings Highway Solar, has stated that there is now a way for homeowners and businesses to get solar energy installed without the high out of pocket cost that is normally associated with this type of installation. The program has been funded by Goldman Sachs, a bank, which wants to see the drain on non-renewable resources stopped. Individuals who are accepted into the program made available by the bank will be provided with a rebate of $500, which is their 'thank you' for going solar.

Along with the $500 rebate, which is provided once the installation process has been completed, those who qualify can also earn additional amounts from $500 to $2000 based on recommending and referring others to do the same. Referred individuals who complete the installation process can receive their own rebate, while those who made the reference are rewarded for their recruitment efforts. Savings Highway says, "When your new solar energy system has been installed and you're saving money, your friends and family may also be interested. You'll receive up to $2,000 for every referral who is approved and receives our solar energy system installation. There is no limit to the number of referrals you can make. For example, 10 referred installs a month would earn you a minimum of $5,000 monthly plus bonuses."

Details of the rebate and how to apply can be found through the Savings Highway website. Here, interested individuals can learn interesting facts about solar energy, and determine if this power source is right for them and their family or business needs. The site offers a free quote to visitors, and provides real photos of homes and businesses which have already undergone the change with successful results.

With no out of pocket cost to worry about, Savings Highway is hoping that more Americans will see the light in this modern method of energy. Those who take advantage of the benefits offered through the Goldman Sachs program will not only be saving money, but also reducing their carbon footprint on the planet. The company, which can be found at <http://www.solarenergyoffer.com>, has made it clear that while they love the people that their business allows them to work with, their true passion is the environment, and solar energy is certainly one way to protect it.
