February 22, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Transfer to Digital, a video and image transfer service company, has launched a Vancouver location in response to demand for dedicated video professionals that can transfer obsolete media to digital formats, from across Canada but mainly in BC and the lower mainland.

Transfer to Digital helps customers transfer video tapes (VHS, MiniDV, Video8/Hi8/Digital8, Betamax, Betacam), film (8mm, Super8, and 16mm), and still images (photos, slides, negatives) to digital formats. Transfer to Digital is part of a growing trend to protect personal memories stored on obsolete and now difficult to access formats.

Michael Gyori, owner of Transfer to Digital, explains: "My vision is to provide high-quality media transfers with prompt, friendly, and competitively priced service."

Transfer to Digital offers dedicated video professionals that serve customers locally, so they don't have to ship their precious memories out of province. Transfer to Digital uses the best hardware available to ensure superior quality transfers.

Prior to purchasing Transfer to Digital from Media Button Communications in 2017, Michael Gyori co-founded

Sandcastle Pictures, a film production company, which has produced 2 feature films, The Evil In Us (2016) and Fun House (2019), the later being in the final stages of post production.
