July 14, 2015

July 14, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Temecula, California based law firm, The Temecula Attorney, has announced that a recent move has brought car accident legal coverage to a new location in full force. The practice is known throughout the community for its focus on auto accident and personal injury law, and reports from satisfied clients reflect the firm's opinions on putting their customers first. The legal team has been described in the following way regarding their work in this field of law: "Clients can expect to have someone who is capable of representing them for injuries that came from the fault of another, which left them to suffer psychologically, and physically. These types of lawyers have the necessary qualifications and training to practice within several various fields of law, but in most cases they will handle claims in regard to injuries almost exclusively."

The recent move has kept the firm within the Riverside area, but has offered a new location at their Ridge Park Drive office. The team believes that this will make locating a Riverside personal injury attorney easier for their current and future client base. Those who require an attorney of this nature are directed to contact the practice for a free consultation, which will allow the team to focus directly on a client's individual issues and resolve them accordingly following the initial consult. The Riverside auto accident attorney reports that, "Our training is client oriented and client specific. If the client has special needs and requirements we train all our staff to provide and accommodate those requirements. We start with the simple things, like calling each client or prospective client back as soon as possible and never more than the next business day."

This Riverside car accident attorney practice is recognized as a full service, as well as online business, legal practice. The team at Pheil Law Firm, also known as The Temecula Attorney, is experienced in State and Federal courts and while they do specialize in automobile accident and personal injury suits, the team also has experience with everything from contracts, corporate, and business litigation including internet law. The law firm has expressed that they hope to continue serving clients in all of these areas from their new location, and that the community is as happy with the move as they are.
