Baltimore Homeowners are Turning to Dependable Homebuyers in a Cooling Real Estate Market

February 25, 2019

Baltimore, Maryland - February 25, 2019 -
Baltimore City, Maryland - The real estate market in Baltimore is cooling. Dependable Homebuyers cites the difference between the increasing number of houses listed for sale and the reducing number of homebuyers looking for such properties. Homeowners have always had to deal with conventional hurdles to sell their houses. These hurdles have just turned into daunting challenges, making it difficult for most homeowners to sell their properties and some homeowners will be unable to sell at all. Those invested in finding out more about the Baltimore real estate market are invited to visit https://sites.google.com/site/webuyhousesinbaltimoremd/Latest-We-Buy-Houses-In-Baltimore-PDF.

The average wait time for homeowners has been around ninety days in Baltimore. This is now being reviewed in light of the fact that it is a buyers? market in Baltimore. Buyers have many more options. The surplus of houses for sale is hitting homeowners hard and they are being compelled to reduce the ask prices. Even reducing the ask price is not working for most homeowners since homebuyers want the most impeccable properties. Many properties are in need of repairs. Cosmetic staging does not help resolve structural issues and other problems. There are homeowners who have not been able to sell their houses in over a year. There are many homeowners in Baltimore who have spent months waiting after listing their property and having a real estate agent representing them but there aren?t enough interested buyers.

Dependable Homebuyers is fast becoming the first option of such homeowners who are unable to sell their properties in the buyers? market. The real estate market is expected to cool further, with more houses being listed for sale and even fewer buyers looking for homes. Dependable Homebuyers is not changing its practice of buying houses directly from owners. The company is still making cash offers. The purchase offers are being presented upfront, usually within twenty four hours after the viewing. The company is continuing its buying spree and is still completing sales in just seven business days. Dependable Homebuyers buys Maryland homes in any condition.

The fact that Dependable Homebuyers is not relying on ordinary buyers is one reason why they can continue buying even when the demand is waning. The company does not rely on real estate agents or any other third party. It is not depending on banks to finance their purchases. It is definitely not looking for the most desirable property in a much sought after location. Dependable Homebuyers has been a disruptor in the real estate industry for a few years now and it is gradually becoming the dominant force to be reckoned with. It is futile for homeowners to consider any alternative when they can assuredly sell their houses to Dependable Homebuyers without paying commissions, closing costs, for repairs or staging, property inspections or appraisal.

Dependable Homebuyers has recently announced that it is buying hoarder houses and residential properties facing foreclosure. This has expanded their portfolio and many more owners of properties can now contact the company to sell their houses directly and immediately. The real estate market in Baltimore is unlikely to undergo a reversal anytime soon. Dependable Homebuyers is hence becoming the only pragmatic solution for those who want to sell them home right now.
