LiveEco recently released their fun erasers onto the Amazon marketplace. Since their launch, the company states that the erasers have been virtually flying off of their shelves. They state that their erasers are a big hit with parents as well as teachers who are using them as learning incentives in the classroom.

Christina Abels, a representative for LiveEco says, "These little erasers really have become a customer favorite. One only has to look at the reviews that we have received on Amazon from our customers to see how well liked they are."

Abels says that the company designed the erasers to make learning fun for children. She states that emojis in general have become very popular over the past few years and the company's erasers have fun faces on them to help entice children to use them, which in turn leads to them studying more.

Teachers agree that the erasers have gotten the attention of their students, particularly when they are used as incentives for doing their work. One teacher states that, "My students really started paying attention to the game when I started using these erasers as the prize. They want to learn because they want to take one of these erasers home, and it thrills me to know that I have something that really encourages them to do their best."

Abels states that parents are using the erasers, as well, for party gifts and as their own incentives to get their children to do their homework. One parent commented that she uses the erasers now as a prize when her children get their homework done on time or when they read their required reading for the night. The company states that they are pleased that the erasers are working so well.

Studies indicate that children tend to learn better when incentives are offered. Teachers have for years given out gold stars and other incentives to get their students to take part in the learning process. Abels says that these erasers make wonderful learning incentives and because they are actually erasers, they come in handy for children during the learning process, as well.

Emojis became very popular with the use of many social media sites such as Facebook and with texting, Snapchat and other apps. LiveEco states that they thrive in providing parents and teachers with something that will spark the attention of their children and help them to feel more focused on the task at hand. Abels says that emojis are a wonderful way to do this. Emojis have been seen, particularly in the past two years, on everything from pillows and clothing to cups and other products. Their popularity continues to grow, and Abels adds that the company is glad that parents and children love the styles that are available in their erasers.

The erasers are available on Amazon in a package of 60, which includes 12 different styles of 3D emojis. The company states that they always welcome feedback from their customers and encourage them to leave their reviews on their Amazon page. Abels says that reviews from their customers have helped the erasers to quickly become a customer favorite.

Parents, teachers or anyone who is interested in learning more about these emoji erasers from LiveEco can read through the various customer reviews on Amazon to get a better idea of why they have become such a popular product in the past few months. The company states that they are always available to answer any questions and that customers can contact them online, through their Amazon page or directly by email to have their questions answered. Abels states that they expect the erasers to gain even more in popularity throughout the current school year and urges those who are interested to order soon just in case their overwhelming popularity leads to a stall in their current inventory. The erasers can be seen on the Amazon page from LiveEco, where the company's other products are also listed.
