LiveEco, distributor of popular kids erasers with emoji faces, recently reported that they have received a number of new customer reviews regarding their erasers. The company released the emoji erasers just a short time ago and they have quickly become a favorite among teachers and parents.

Christina Abels, a representative for the company says, "We love these little emoji erasers and apparently, so do our customers. We have received so many notifications of new reviews, all of which are positive, where parents and teachers alike tell us how much they love the erasers for helping to encourage their children to do their schoolwork."

Abels says that the erasers are available now on the Amazon marketplace and come in packs of 60. The 60 erasers are split up into 12 fun emoji faces, giving teachers particularly a good selection of gifts to award students in their classrooms. Abels states that because there are so many erasers in a package, they make a very affordable way for teachers to offer learning incentives.

The company's customers tend to agree. Recent reviews from the sales of those erasers state that teachers and parents are using the erasers for incentives in a number of ways. Parents use them in gift bags at birthday parties and one parent even added them to their holiday bags for her child's Christmas party at school.

"They're just so versatile with regards to offering them as gifts or incentives," says Abels. "We are so thrilled that everyone loves them as much as we do. They have a fun and popular design and they are perfect for kids of all ages. We even heard from one parent of teenagers who used them to coax their kids into doing their homework."

The company's reviews on Amazon tell the same story. They currently have a five star review rating from customers, with many customers stating that they have already or will soon purchase more. According to reviews, the erasers are being used as stocking stuffers, party favors and general incentives for kids of all ages.

Abels says that the only thing the company is concerned about right now is keeping up with demand. She says that their inventory is currently full and that the erasers are ready to ship. She continues however, that given the popularity of the erasers, the company is currently urging those who are interested in purchasing them to do so quickly. With the Easter holiday coming up and many end of the school year incentives, Abels says that their demand may soon overtake their supply.

For now, the company's emoji erasers are readily available on Amazon and can be ordered by teachers, parents or anyone who wants a large pack of erasers with fun emoji faces. Abels states that the company appreciates all of their customers who have left them positive reviews, and she says that they fully expect their reviews to continue as more and more people order and try out the fun emoji erasers, that are fully functional for use as an eraser.

Those who are interested in learning more can do so on the official Amazon page for the company's emoji erasers. Abels states that customers are welcomed to and even encouraged to read through their many five star reviews to get a better idea of what customers think of the erasers prior to ordering. Those who have questions can contact LiveEco through their Amazon seller's page or by email to learn more about these and other products that the company offers.

Abels states that the emoji has become a very popular item in general, with sales of emoji designed items reaching paramount numbers over the past holiday season. She says that any child or teenager will love the design of the erasers, which is why they help to make learning more fun. Those interested in seeing those designs or learning more about the erasers in general can visit LiveEco on Amazon.
