Having a loved one with Alzheimer's or dementia, no matter what level, can be draining to a couple or family. Bringing in professional care through an aide for a few hours a day or as a 24-hour service can make all the difference in the world. In Concord, Angelic Home Care is the #1 choice in this area.

There are few words to describe the feeling of having a parent, spouse, or other loved one, and then have to see them face the challenges of Alzheimer's or dementia. When the loved one is in the home, it can be comparable to having a second or third job without skilled assistance. In Concord, NC, privately owned and deeply experienced home health care company Angelic Home Care are experts in helping make life much easier, livable, and positive for all involved through providing a professional healthcare aid for short or long term assistance. There's no shame in needing an extra set of caring hands and eyes in this kind of circumstance, and many experts say, it can help improve the quality of life for not just the patient, but also everyone else who lives in the home.

“Our solid reputation is in part from how exceptionally well our team is able to care for those who have Alzheimer's or dementia,” commented a spokesperson from Angelic Home Care. “The professional training and compassionate nature of our team members provide a relief that otherwise may not be able to be found very often at all. We are always here for anyone who would like to discuss their own situation and how we can help, in the best, and most affordable way possible.”

Angelic Home Care provides both hourly and 24-hour rates, giving as many options as possible. They always provide a free in-home consultation on request and introduce their aides to clients to be sure everything is a good, comfortable fit. It's well understood having an aide in the home is something that requires trust, and Angelic Home Care has a well-documented reputation of exceeding expectations in care, along with being completely insured, and having a staff that is trained to be able to do their job at the highest level.

Things like bathing, preparing and serving meals, lifting providing transportation, and other everyday needs are all covered by Angelic Home Care, covering all of the basic things that are expected when a loved one needs to be cared for in a dignified and respectful way.

Angelic Home Care services are available seven days a week, with a minimum of three hours all the way to 24-hour shifts available for the days a home health care aide is needed.

Recent reviews for Angelic Home Care endorse the service completely giving it the highest of ratings.

Karen S., from Kannapolis, recently said in a five-star review, “My husband's mother lives with us and has mild to moderate dementia. My having to do 95% of her care was putting an immense strain on our marriage. Thankfully, we talked to Angelic Home Care and now they have helped me get my life back, where I can be a wife and mother, as well as helping care for my husband's mother. This has improved all of the relationships in our home and I would recommend Angelic Home Care for the high-quality and caring nature of their services.”
