March 04, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

SEO Houston Pros, a search engine optimization agency in Houston, Texas, has announced a merger with a new national brand that will allow them to cater to all SEO services in the United States. The SEO company states that their more than 34 employees due to this merger will make them an unstoppable force for local, national and organic SEO in the nation.

Garrett Laidler, a representative for the company says, "This collaboration will enable us to help so many more clients with all of their SEO needs. We are all very excited about where this new direction will take us."

The Houston SEO company focuses on ensuring that businesses have a good online presence to draw in more customers. Laidler says that they previously provided these services to a number of industries but adds that the merger will now enable them to assist even more businesses with their online presence needs by offering a wide range of SEO services from reputation management to content and social media marketing and more.

The company has merged with Found Me Online, an SEO company based in Spring, Texas. This full service digital marketing company focuses in helping businesses in the mortgage and real estate industries by providing SEO strategies that gain more leads for their clients.

“Those in the mortgage and real estate industries rely on leads to further their business,” says Laidler. “This company has been working for years to generate prospects for those industries and to help clients to gain leads to grow their own businesses.”

Laidler says that both companies bring their own strengths in SEO to the merger, and states that both companies have years of experience in offering clients what they need to strengthen their online presence and gain more customers or leads. He says that the merging of the two companies is a decision that is designed to benefit both businesses, and he adds that having these combined years of experience will only help them to assist more clients with their SEO needs.

The merger will make the company a true Houston SEO expert, Laidler says, and he adds that any business in the nation that is having difficulties in finding customers or clients because they lack online presence can call on the company for help. He says that building a good website today is simply not enough to make a business successful online. His company provides pay per click advertising, as well as website design, local and organic search engine optimization, reputation and brand management, video production and marketing and a wide range of additional services, all of which are designed to help local and national businesses to build their online presence and reach more of their targeted audiences.

Laidler says that SEO has changed drastically in the past ten years, and he adds that it is likely to continue changing over the next ten years or more. He states that he and his team, along with their newest team members, are all dedicated to staying on top of these changes in an effort to provide their clients with the highest quality of digital marketing services. He states that the company guarantees to clients that they will not take on their needs until they fully understand the vision that the company has.

Laidler says that the merger will enable them to provide a higher quality and a wider range of services to their existing clients and to any new clients that they may pick up along the way. He says that they are joining with a company that has more than a decade of experience, which adds to their experience with a number of platforms and services to better provide clients with the SEO that they need to reach their desired levels of success. Those who are interested in learning more about either of these companies can visit their respective websites for a complete list of their offered services and more information on their history and experience.
