The Texas Mortgage Pros has announced a new location in Austin. The company recently opened a new office on 5th Street in Austin, Texas. Jason Turner, a representative for the company says that the opening was a huge success and adds that the company has already begun assisting local consumers with their home financing needs.

"We could not be happier with the way that everything has fallen into place," says Turner. "We have been helping local residents with a wide range of services and resources and look forward to helping even more in the coming years."

Turner says that what sets the company apart from other similar services is their personalized approach to meeting their customers' financial needs. He says that they work with a number of government and private programs, all designed to make it easier for consumers to get into a home of their own.

One of the programs that Turner says has sparked interest is a program that will benefit the first time home buyer Austin. He says that consumers who have never owned their own home, never had a mortgage in their name, can take advantage of this program which is designed to offer a number of consumer benefits.

"This is just one of the programs that we currently have available," says Turner. "We work with each customer on a one-on-one basis, helping them to determine what is best for them and showing them their options. We don't believe in a cookie cutter solution for anyone's financial needs. We believe that buying a home is an experience that should bring joy and part of that joy comes from working with a company that is going to put the home buyer first. That's what we do."

Turner states that they have had much success in their new location, even though they have been operating for a very short time. He says that as word gets out that they are now located in Austin, he hopes that more and more consumers will come to them for the personalized assistance that they deserve. He adds that their new location is very easy to access from anywhere in the Austin area, and they also have other locations for those in other areas of Texas.

In fact, the company has launched a number of new office locations over the past few weeks. New locations in Midland, Corpus Christi, Arlington, and Houston, just to name a few, are currently helping their local customers to realize their own dreams of home ownership. Turner states that the company's goal is to assist every customer in Texas with their home financing needs.

Turner adds that the initial consultation is an important part of the financial process. He states that those who are currently looking to purchase real estate can contact the company to schedule this initial consultation so that they can begin to work on the process. He adds that the company's website offers more information on the process, as well as an online pre-qualification form that can help consumers to determine where they currently are in the buying process.

Those in Austin or the surrounding areas can visit the mortgage lender in Austin at their new office location or visit them on their website to learn more. The website offers detailed information about each of their new locations, including driving directions to each office. Those who would like to schedule a consultation with the company can do so by filling out the online contact form or by calling or emailing them during their normal business hours. The company states that they look forward to helping consumers in and around the Austin area with all of their home financing needs. Turner adds that their Austin location has already been helping consumers in the area with a wide range of services and resources and urges those who have yet to contact them to schedule their consultation when they are ready.
