March 12, 2019

March 12, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Breckinridge Heating & Cooling, based in Louisville, Kentucky, has announced that they are offering a special on furnace inspections and/or cleanings at $54.95. This is one of the specials that they are currently offering. The company is a licensed master heating, ventilation and air conditioning (HVAC) contractor for Louisville and neighboring areas. The kinds of services provided by Breckinridge Heating & Cooling can be subdivided into several categories. Meanwhile, Breckinridge Heating and Cooling reviews provide proof of the high quality of their services. For instance, Andrea M. gave them a five star rating and said, "Amazing prices and outstanding service! My furnace went out on a Saturday and they were at my house within an hour of my call. I had to have my 23 yr old furnace replaced and the price was very affordable, the employees were friendly and professional and the whole experience was 5 star all the way! I highly recommend this company and plan on using them for all of my HVAC needs!?"

The company services all makes and models. Some of the well-known brands they service are Bryant, Trane, Carrier, Ruud, Rheem, American Standard, Goodman, and Amana.

As indicated in the recently announced special, they provide furnace repair and/or cleaning. This is vital particularly at this time when very low temperatures have been experienced in Louisville. According to the Louisville, KY HVAC contractor, some of the common indications that furnace repair may be required are: the pilot light is off; the furnace doesn't run on or it won't stay on for more than a few minutes; the furnace does not emit warm air; the blower is either on constantly or it won't turn on; strange and loud noises are heard from the heating unit.

Mark Mason explains that their first response when there is a problem with a furnace is to check the underlying cause of the symptoms that were mentioned above. Technicians from Breckinridge Heating & Cooling will go to the home or office promptly after a client's call to conduct a diagnostic test to determine the problem and develop a solution for it. Some of the most common solutions are: burner repair, motor replacement, and air filter replacement.

If there is no pilot light, this is usually caused by a blocked flue, improper limit control, or a faulty control board. A clogged drain or a dirty flame sensor are the common causes for units that do not remain lit. The technicians will first do some cleaning and then perform some adjustments to get the pilot light burning.

Motor replacement is often done if the pilot light is off and unusual sounds are heard from the motor. And it may be that problems with the blower are caused by a dirty and/or faulty air filter. The technicians from Breckinridge Heating & Cooling will replace the air filter when this is found to be the cause of the problem.
