The Cote d'Azur (French Riviera) is the Mediterranean coast on the southeastern part of France. At the French Riviera can be found famous beach resorts, such as Cannes and Saint-Tropez, and the independent microstate of Monaco. The Cote d'Azur was once used as a health retreat during the 18th century, and in the 1960s, several aristocrats, artists and other wealthy and fashionable people were attracted to the area. Today, Cote d'Azur is a very popular holiday destination, with paths linking the many coastal towns and villages.

The French Riviera is found in the heart of Europe, between the Mediterranean Sea and the Southern Alps. Tourists can visit the pebble beach resorts of Mandelieu-la-Napoule in Menton or go on a sea tour of the Lerins Islands. Various national parks are located in the Cote d'Azur, such as the Mercantour National Park. Various activities are available in these national parks, including horseback riding, hiking, canyoning, mountain biking, caving, and climbing. The region also boasts of 15 ski resorts with more than 700 km of slopes.

Those who are interested in food can explore the full range of flavors offered by Provençal cuisine. People can choose from Michelin starred restaurants to the more common restaurants. Tourists can try the gnocchi, nicoise salad, pissaladiere, stockfish, daube, ratatouille, tourte de blette, farcis nicois, and more.

Those interested in history and the various links of Cote d'Azur with antiquity can visit various famous places including the Cimiez Arenas, the Greek Villa of Kerylos, the Tropaeum Alpium, the Chapelle Notre-Dame des Fontaines, Villa Ephrussi Rothschild, the Notre-Dame Sanctuary, the new Jean Cocteau Museum in Menton, the Russian Church, and the Chagall Museum in Nice. And those interested in the arts can also visit those places that were seen by the great artists, including Renoir, Monet, Chagall, Picasso, Dufy, Matisse, and more.

Cote d'Azur is indeed a worthy destination for tourists and people on vacation. People who love golf will not need to forego their favorite sport because of the many beautiful golf courses located between Cote d'Azur and Provence. These include the Terre Blanche Hotel Spa Golf Resort, Domaines de Saint-Andreol, Dolce Fregate Provence, Barbaroux Hotel Golf and Spa, Royal Mougins Golf Resort Hotel, and Golf de Roquebrune Resort. These places offer not just golf courses but also spa treatments and opportunities to enjoy the beaches along the shores of the Mediterranean.

There are also a number of special places to visit in the Cote d'Azur. These include the La Colline du Chateau in Nice, the Old Town in Nice, the medieval village of Eze, the medieval village of Grasse, Monaco, and the town of Menton.

There are also a number of festivities in the Cote d'Azur that people are likely to be interested in. These include the Lemon Festival in Menton, the Mimosa Festival, and the Nice Carnival. Of course, there is the Cannes International Film Festival, which is followed the Nice Jazz Festival and Jazz in Juan.
