March 21, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Alberta based Corefront Custom Homes and Renovations is pleased to announce that they currently have openings for clients who are planning to renovate their homes in the greater Calgary area.

As noted on the company's website, Corefront is a full service construction management company who specializes in general home construction and renovation services. "We are a family-owned local company, with a strong emphasis on providing quality services and building excellent customer relationships. From foundation to finishing, we assure our clients that our dependable and highly-skilled staff and site personnel are able to deliver impressive results within the specified budget," says Lewis Cowie from Corefront Custom Homes and Renovations. He also points out that the company focuses on meeting deadlines and expectations, and their goal is to leave their customers with a beautiful home that they can enjoy for many years to come.

Cowie explains that their trade focuses on both residential and commercial building construction as well as custom remodeling works for specific spaces, such as living rooms, reception areas, bedrooms, toilets, basements, man-caves, meeting rooms, and more. Corefront Kitchen Renovations also recognizes the importance of the kitchen area where family members dine and connect with each other. They believe it is important to create a beautiful, functional, and enjoyable dining area. Cowie also points out that kitchen and bathroom renovations are two of the most demanding kinds of projects because there are a lot of elements that need to be considered and, while it is tempting to splurge on expensive and luxurious items, he advises homeowners to always choose functionality over luxury.

Furthermore, Cowie states that a home renovation project not only improves the appeal of the house, but also helps to significantly boost its market value. He maintains that, "A lot of research, planning, and crucial decision making is needed to ensure that the remodeling works will be carried out timely and economically." He also mentions that a professional contractor is capable of finishing the projects on time, while minimizing the expenses involved; this is why it is imperative to hire one. However, he advises homeowners to do their research, consult the Better Business Bureau (BBB), look for online reviews, and ask for recommendations from family and friends to help find a custom builder that can be trusted. Lastly, he points out that a prospective contractor must be legally bonded and have all the necessary insurance to ensure the safety and protection of both parties.

Those looking for a professional remodeling contractor in the greater Calgary area may reach out to Corefront Home Renovations Calgary by calling their office hotline. Aside from offering home renovation and remodeling services, they also offer full project management services which include site supervision, trade and work stage scheduling, local building code compliance, construction review, project maintenance, budget monitoring, and more. They are also considered one of the top home renovators in the area based on the positive reviews and recommendations they receive online.

Allen Murray, in a Google review, said, "The Corefront team was in charge of renovating the main floor of our house, which included major structural changes, a full kitchen redesign, fireplace removal and replacement, bathroom and laundry area extension, and living room renovation. Corefront's execution of the project was exceptional, with the trades well scheduled and efficient. There was hardly a day that there wasn't some activity going on at our home. I made daily inspections of the progress and found the quality of their workmanship to be exceptional. Corefront really made a major renovation look so easy. The end results were fantastic and we were absolutely thrilled with the outcome."

Meanwhile, Kim Armstrong, in Houzz review, said, "We went to the Calgary Home Expo and got the information on Corefront. They came by our house, discussed the things that needed to be done, and sent us a quotation a few days later. We decided to hire them, and we are very pleased with the end result. Highly recommended."

More information regarding the company and their services can be found on their website. Homeowners within Corefront's service area are also encouraged to visit their office location in Calgary, AB. Furthermore, interested parties may connect with them through their official Twitter account to learn more about their latest news and important announcements.
