The company is offering portrait photography services and this is in addition to engagement and wedding photography, real estate photography and other services. The company also has a new Google My Business site that shows the kinds of photography services that they are able to provide. Those who want to know more about the company can visit their media page at <https://www.pressadvantage.com/organization/tanner-henvey-photography>.

Tanner Henvey, owner of Tanner Henvey Photography, says, "Portrait photography can be very challenging depending on many factors. The primary goal of portrait photography is to capture an individual's personality. I am experienced in capturing images that appear natural and bring out an individual's personality. I have custom solutions for all your portrait photography needs and will pick the perfect lighting and location that suits you best."

Photographs can be used for a wide range of purposes, and it is always a good idea to obtain the best professional photography services. Low quality images are usually not desirable because they can gravely affect those important moments in a person's life like a wedding or a birthday celebration. Naturally, people would like to capture the joy and the various emotions during each vital event. And it is only professional photographers who have the skills and the experience to do that. Furthermore, for photographs of products, poor images can never be used as this could spoil a company's marketing campaign. See an example of the quality of Henvey's portrait photography.

And then there are weddings and engagements. These are significant events that generally occur only once in a person's life. These will need a professional photographer who can capture those important moments that will never happen again. The pictures can serve as important aids for keeping the memory of those events alive and fresh in people's hearts. Wedding photography is exceptionally tricky because the events are unfolding fast and the photographer must know when to snap a photo to capture those important moments in the best possible way.

Another important category is real estate and landscape photography. Since these are used for real estate business, eye-catching pictures are needed to get the attention of potential buyers. This requires a unique kind of experience, which Tanner Henvey has obtained during his years as a professional photographer. In relation to this, landscape photography is also essential to provide clients with a clear view of the property that is being sold. A professionally taken landscape photo can effectively complement real estate photos and boost the chances of selling the property faster.

Another important category is maternity photography. Once again, this is designed to capture a special moment in a person's life. These photos will allow the mother in the future to relive those moments when she was months away or even days away from giving birth to her baby. Tanner Henvey Photography assures they will capture that special glow only a mom can have and make sure that it is done exactly as desired.

And after giving birth, mothers will want to have photos of their newborn baby. Thus, there is what is known as newborn photography, which is usually done when the baby is less than two weeks old. Those moments will never come back again so it is vital to have a professional photographer who knows how to capture those beautiful moments of the newborn baby and her mother.

Tanner Henvey has years of professional photography experience in the Lynchburg, VA area. He specializes in portrait, wedding and real estate photography, but can also lend his unique talents to capture your other special moments such as expectant mothers, newborn babies, senior photos, birthday parties and other special events.
