King City Movers have announced that they have started offering Auckland office furniture moving services across the wider region with a reliable and proficient moving service who have the experience needed to competently and carefully relocate your office furniture to its ultimate destination.

One of the owners of King City Removals Auckland, Mike Jones says that their combination of customizable service, trained employees, top gear and the readily available fleet of trucks ensure that they are able to provide their consumers with a stress-free all-in-one moving experience. They also say that the company has many years of involvement in office and domestic moving services, this also including spa pools, house furniture and larger fixtures like the office desks and tables. They also state that all of their movers are expert moving specialists, outgoing and proficient. He also says that a thorough background check is done on all new staff members before they are engaged to guarantee that they are trustworthy and well skilled with all the fine details of moving large furniture items.

Office furniture require special care when being lifted from one place to another. The team at King City Movers comprehensively recognises the significance and the understanding of moving fine furniture like pianos, art objects and they take highest care to pack items carefully so that they remain intact and undamaged during transportation to reach the destination safely. Any movement inside the truck during transportation can lead to office furniture being damaged. Once they reach the destination office furniture would require a skilled service to get them into location ready for use. But with King City Movers, customers can rest assured that they will get their office furniture in pristine condition.

The company's quotes are laid out in advance and there are no hidden costs. Since office furniture can be costly and delicate to move, extra care needs to be taken while packing and shipping them. The customers can look forward to a hassle-free office furniture moving experience at an inexpensive price.

Potential new customers can contact the company through their website, email, phone, or visit them in their media room to get more information regarding the specific services they offer, their experience with moving office furniture, spa pools and other larger items.
