Breckinridge Heating & Cooling is pleased to announce that they are offering 24-hour emergency HVAC services in Louisville, KY. The company states that their service area includes Lexington, Elizabethtown, Frankfort, Bardstown, Shelbyville, Taylorsville, Southern Indiana, Jeffersonville, New Albany, and the surrounding areas.

"We specialize in repair, installation, and maintenance of air conditioning units, furnaces, heat pumps, and boilers," says Mark Mason, owner of Breckinridge Heating & Cooling. He points out that their certified technicians are capable of servicing well-known HVAC brands including Bryant, Trane, Carrier, Rudd, Rheem, American Standard, Goodman, and Amana, among a long list of others.

"Our family owned, and locally operated business has been around for more than 50 years already. We are capable of servicing both commercial establishments and residential properties, and we pride ourselves in providing our clients with quality services and excellent customer support. Our company is also fully licensed, bonded, and insured for your added peace of mind," says Mason.

As noted on the company's website, homeowners play a vital role in ensuring that their heating and cooling systems operate at peak efficiency, improving home comfort and energy savings. "Regular HVAC system maintenance not only prolongs the lifespan of the equipment, but also helps you save more money in the long run," Mason said. He explains that forcing a unit to operate in a distressed condition may result to serious damage, and cause expensive HVAC repair fees. Furthermore, he points out that taking a few preventative steps is a small price to pay to ensure the system's efficiency, and to avoid costly repairs.

Meanwhile, Mason explains the importance of choosing a reliable and professional HVAC company. He explains that an HVAC contractor must give the client upfront and transparent pricing before any installation or repair service begins. He also states that a HVAC system is an expensive investment, so it is important to hire a company who has the proper licenses and certifications. "Make sure to verify the contractor's licensing with your city or state, and if necessary, request for copies of their credentials and certificates. Alternatively, you can also check out online reviews on Google, BBB, and Facebook," he said. Furthermore, he advises homeowners to find a contractor who is willing to do a free comprehensive check-up and diagnosis before performing any repair or maintenance services. "This is crucial, especially when you are on a tight budget, so look for a company that gives free estimates as well as discounted rates," he said.
