April 08, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Dr. Aaron Kosins, a prominent plastic surgeon in Newport Beach, California, recently discussed his use of Natrelle(R) breast implants. Dr. Kosins provides breast augmentation Newport Beach and specializes in Natrelle(R) implants.

Dr. Kosins states that Natrelle(R) implants provide a much more natural feel and come in a variety of shapes and sizes. He says that he has had extraordinary experiences with the implants and that the gel types and shapes are available for every body type and every want or need.

"Multiple size and projections are what make these particular implants the better choice for most of our patients," says the plastic surgeon. "Natrelle(R) implants provide a fuller look that is perfect for all body shapes and sizes. Many of our patients who have had these implants say that they offer a better result than anything else available."

Dr. Kosins says that the goal of his practice is to help patients to get the positive results that they want. The plastic surgeon has received a number of awards and accolades and is currently considered the best provider of implants and other services in Newport Beach.

?The first step of course is to schedule a consultation,? says Aaron Kosins MD. ?This consultation allows us to get to know the patient and what they want. It is a critical step in the process, and during the consultation, we can discuss the patient?s breast augmentation needs and whether Natrelle (R) implants are the better choice for this particular patient.?

Dr. Kosins says that breast implants have gained a bad reputation over the years but that the procedure is making a comeback. Lower quality implants gave breast augmentation a bad name for some consumers, with news stories relating how the implants did not work properly or otherwise had to be removed. Dr. Kosins says that Natrelle(R) implants are one reason that breast augmentation is making a comeback. He states that the quality of the implants, in addition to their better sizing and shaping options, make them the perfect choice for most patients who are looking to change their appearance.

Dr. Kosins and his team provide a wide range of plastic surgery procedures and services, all of which can be viewed in detail on their website. Dr. Kosins states that he and his team always try to help patients to fully understand the procedure that they have chosen to ensure that they know what to expect before, during and after. He states that during the initial consultation, he will walk through the process with the patient to help them to better understand what will be done and any recovery time that they should expect.

Dr. Kosin?s website offers information about all of his offered procedures, as well as a list of the awards and recognition that he has received over the years.
