April 08, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Dr. Steven Kacel, a Northbrook dentist, states that he and his team use only the latest in dental technology to ensure a positive experience for all of their patients. The Illinois based dental practice uses a number of new and improved methods and equipment to help their patients to receive the very best in dental care.

Dr. Steven Kacel says, "Our practice is pleased to offer our patients the latest in cutting edge dental technology. We use only the best equipment to give our patients the healthiest and most beautiful smiles in the world."

Dr. Kacel states that one of the ways that his practice offers patients the best in dental care is through their use of CariVu infrared cavity detection. He states that along with digital x-rays, this cavity detection can help to find cavities before they get completely out of hand and helps to protect against tooth decay.

"We strive to always give our patients the best in dental care and using this innovative technology allows us to do so," says Dr. Kacel. "At our Northbrook dentist office, patients can count on the very best in care."

Dr. Kacel says that digital x-rays give them a much more convenient way to examine the teeth and gums of their patients. Digital x-rays use less radiation than their traditional counterparts, which make them safer for patients. They also provide a much more detailed look at the patient's teeth and gums, allowing the dentist and his team to locate and identify any dental issues that may be evident.

"Digital x-rays help us to catch tooth decay and other dental issues early," says Dr. Kacel. "And we all know that early detection is key in treating any number of health concerns. We use digital x-rays for their technological advances in helping us to diagnose and treat patient dental issues as well as for the overall safety of our patients."

Dr. Steven Kacel is a D.D.S., M.A.G.D. and F.A.D. Dr. Kacel has been treating patients in his Northbrook, Illinois dental office for a number of years and states that during that time, he has always kept up to date with the latest in new procedures and cutting edge technological equipment in an effort to offer the most effective dental care for his patients.

The dentist has more than 30 years of experience in his field and has received extensive training in the diagnosis, treatment and rehabilitation of a number of dental issues. His practice provides a wide range of dental procedures for the entire family, including regular cleanings and a number of cosmetic procedures.

Dr. Kacel adds that his entire team is dedicated to the healthy smiles of their patients. He states that his staff consists of friendly and professional dental associates who are ready to assist patients with any of their dental concerns. Dr. Kacel's practice has a website, which can be accessed at <https://northbrookdentistoffice.com/>.

The dentist's website offers much more detailed information on the various dental procedures that they provide. Patients can find information related to their initial consultation, as well as a blog that provides detailed information on various dental procedures. Those who are in need of scheduling an appointment can do so on the website using the convenient online form or by contacting the dental practice directly by phone or email. The website offers office hours for the practice, as well as directions and a map to help patients find the office for their appointment.

Dr. Kacel urges those who have not had a regular checkup for their dental health to visit the practice online and learn more about their services. He states that everyone should visit the dentist no less than once per year and adds that the practice offers first consultations that are designed to help patients to better understand their oral health and any procedures that they may need to improve their oral health. More on this can be found on the practice's website.
