Infinit Lash Products, based in Del Mar, California, has announced that they have recently published a blog post that explains how to choose the best eyelash extension glue for a particular person. In the article, Infinit Lash Products founder Tasha Land discusses the various factors that affect a person's choice for eyelash extension adhesive.

Professional lash artist Tasha Land says, "If you are new to lashing, you may feel overwhelmed with all the different options and opinions you're bombarded with. If you're a vet in the business, you may be wondering if you should try a different glue or keep different adhesives in your arsenal for different clients. We're here to help break down the main things to look for to determine which eyelash glue is the best for you."

The first thing to consider when trying to find out what glue is used for eyelash extensions that would be best for a particular person, is the climate. According to Tasha Land, it is important to ensure that the temperature and humidity of the work place is within the optimal range for these two factors. If the humidity is too high, the adhesive will dry more quickly. On the other hand, if the air is drier than usual, the adhesive will require a longer time to cure. A possible solution would be to buy a dehumidifier if it is too humid or a humidifier if it is too dry. Or the lash artist can just make a mental note that the adhesive would dry faster than the time indicated for that particular adhesive if the air is too humid and that it would take longer than what is indicated if the air is too dry.

Then there is the speed of the lash artist. Naturally, those who are still new will take a longer time to put on the lash extensions compared to those who are veterans. Thus, those who are still new may want to use an adhesive that takes a longer time to cure, such as the Sensitive variant of the Infinit eyelash extension adhesive, which takes 5 to 7 seconds to dry. This will provide them with a longer time to make some adjustments if necessary. On the other hand, the experts may want to choose a glue that requires only a short time to cure, such as the Volume Plus, which only takes 1 to 2 seconds to dry.

Another factor to consider is the sensitivity of the client. Some clients may be sensitive to the fumes while others may just prefer an adhesive with as little fumes as possible. For these clients, lash artists may want to choose the Sensitive or Sensitive Plus variants. These are designed to minimize irritation although it will not entirely be eliminated. However, it should be noted that these are not as strong as the adhesives with a larger amount of fumes. Thus, their retention time will be less. For instance, Sensitive has a retention time of 4 to 5 weeks, Sensitive Plus lasts for 5 to 6 six weeks, while Volume Plus will last for 7 to 8 weeks.

The fourth factor is retention, which is very important for many clients. Clients will usually want the lash extension to last for as long as possible. It will not only cost less but clients will also not be inconvenienced of having to frequently go back for a fill. However, it should be noted that retention will be affected by how fast the lashes grow, how well the lashes have been applied, and how well they are maintained.

Infinit Lash Products makes sure that its products like the lash extension adhesive do not contain any latex or formaldehyde, which are harmful to a person's health. Furthermore, every ingredient for their products has been personally sourced and salon tested. This ensures that their product is always of high quality.
