

Financial Company Offering New Service For Clients Who Invest In Oil

July 18, 2015

July 18, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Fig Tree Capital Ventures has announced a new service for clients who want to invest in oil. The company consistently strives to provide clients with quality, fundamentally sound, direct investment opportunities in the oil and gas industry.

Ryan Wright, of Fig Tree Capital Ventures, recently had this to say about oil investments: "We want investors to feel safe about where they are putting their money. We can offer the advice that they need to know beyond a doubt that they are going to see a major return on their investment."

Fig Tree Capital Ventures began in 2008, with the goal of providing investment advice for the development of proven oil and natural gas fields. "We started our business with a belief that drilling and producing hydrocarbons can be a much more consistent and lower risk endeavor for investors due to the technology that exists today as well as our aspirations to create product structures that set the bar for investor fairness," says Wright.

The company has evolved over the years into a true capital firm, now offering a number of options in various areas. With experience in the energy sector, they have gone on to expand into direct investment opportunities and diversification strategies for a number of investment partners.

The primary areas of interest are the metropolitan areas of Oklahoma and Texas, to start. As investments progress however, the company plans to expand into other geographical areas as the opportunity arises. Investors can speak with the firm to learn more about future and current oil investing opportunities. Currently, real estate acquisition funds are used to create portfolios for clients that target properties that currently have a cash flow and appreciation potential, all while providing their investors with an exit strategy in under ten years. "Our focus has always been to provide our partners with the very best risk-adjusted return, and we do this by purchasing residential and commercial real estate with the express purpose of generating an income," says Wright.

Investors can now take advantage of the firm's oil investment opportunity, and those interested can visit <http://www.figtreecapitalventures.com> or call (866) 894-7309 to learn more.
