Christchurch, New Zealand based Need Money Now is aware that financial difficulties can plague people from all walks of life. From bills, such as having to deal with medical expenses after an accident (while ineligible for public healthcare), to discovering that the family?s monthly budget has been exceeded, financial hurdles can crop up when least expected. To combat this, Need Money Now strives to ensure that they are always able to assist customers in need of a quick cash influx.

As they proudly proclaim on their website, which can be found at NeedMoneyNow, customers can receive a cash infusion of up to $500 in their bank account within a day of approaching the company for help. Need Money Now enables this speedy transaction utilising a simple 3-step application process. These steps include applying online, receiving approval and a receipt for the transaction, and finally repayment.

Applicants can use the website?s built in calculator function to gauge the size of their financial aid and even set the boundaries of their repayment term, which is a convenient tool to help them understand their obligations before filling out the application itself. In the next step, the applicant?s funds will be transferred directly into their bank account within 60 minutes, following the approval of their application. Finally, the customer does not need to worry about remembering to make their payments on time, or having to travel to Need Money Now?s premises, as the company is able to automatically deduct repayments from the customer?s bank account as per the repayment schedule that was calculated during the first step of the application process.

A crucial part of Need Money Now?s policy is that their customers are able to understand every part of the transaction that they are taking part in. The company sets aside complicated paperwork for precisely this reason; everything that the customer needs to know and do is laid out in a simple easy-to-digest format at every step of the way. Furthermore, this enables full transparency between the company and the applicant, where the latter is always fully aware of the exact costs involved in their repayment scheme.
