July 18, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

SMM Group, LLC, a business in Las Vegas, NV have re-released their popular oven mitt on Amazon just in time for the start of the barbeque season. The multifunctional gloves are perfect for working with anything that involves heat. When the product was launched initially some time ago, it quickly became a huge success. The company expects the same will happen this time around.

Mike from SMM Group, LLC, says, "Our oven mitt can be used for picking up hot things from a stove, for grilling on the barbeque, or even to protect a table from hot pans. It is a multifunctional, comfortable and very useful tool. It has been popular for quite some time now, and we hope that it will continue to be used and loved by many people."

The Grill Heat Aid is made of very high quality materials. This allows even the smallest bit of heat to be absorbed. Hence, even the hottest object feels cool to the touch. As the gloves start to be worn in, they become more and more comfortable. The fabric allows for easy movement, which means that even turning small bits of food over on the grill is easy.

The mitts have silicone strips that give a very good grip, allowing for confident and safe grip. They are a massive improvement on traditional oven mitts, allowing for a much wider range of movement. This is something that many reviewers have also commented on. "I put the gloves on and quickly touched the oven rack which was at 400 degrees," says Lisa A. John. "Then I touched the oven rack a little longer and felt confident that they would protect my hands. At the end of the designated cooking time I took the dutch oven from the oven. The gloves worked great. Thanks to the vendor for the follow up email and tips on washing the gloves."

One thing about company policy that really stands out is their customer service. Besides providing tips on how to best use the gloves, they also offer a 100% lifetime money back guarantee so the gloves can be purchased with confidence.
