

NZ Psychics Celebrates Release Of New Life Coaching Network

April 26, 2019

April 26, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

The Auckland based Life Coaching service, NZ Psychics is celebrating the release of their online new life coaching course and chat room. With a newly redesigned website, this local company is now able to provide services to everyone in New Zealand.

The freshly built website offers its users the ability to create a profile and log into the specially developed life coaching platform that offers basic to advanced level of self-help alongside access to Life Mentors for one on one sessions or advice on the course material. This type of service is a revelation in New Zealand as nothing of its kind has been previously offered to such a large degree.

Marilyn Mendoza, the leader, and brainchild from NZ Psychics says, "It's a small miracle that we managed to get this new website up and running before our deadlines. What's even more incredible is the response that we have received so far. I am bewildered at the rapid growth of new members and as of yesterday, 98% of our old clients have registered onto the new platform and have begun undertaking our courses. It fills me with a lot of pride.?

The feat that NZ Psychics has managed to pull off is very inspiring as the general consensus is that new websites or brand launches require 6-12 months to fully gain traction, with the struggles of new users being shy of signing up to an unfamiliar platform and not having a proven track record. Of course, Mendoza and her brand have been on the market for a few years now so they could leverage the established brand and help promote the new service that they now offer.

Even if that fact is acknowledged, it still shows the value and merit of the new service and that it truly has a place in people's lives and is wanted. Even without the recognized brand name helping the initial launch, the life coaching platform would still have succeeded due to the sheer amount of value and help it provides to anyone that cares to open themselves up to learning a way of living. It is also helped by the fact that it is so accessible.

Traditional life mentoring and coaching required booking in a time with a mentor and traveling to their place of business. This added extra time and steps to the process of seeking help. For people struggling with self-confidence and were already on the fence of even signing up to such a service, the booking and travel process would have been an extra deterrent in their shaky quest to seek help. Travel is another great factor with steadily rising fuel prices and travel times in a gridlocked city, life coaching was much harder to access than ever before.

Of course, the advancement of future technology did not just bring negatives with it as the advent of high-speed internet, online courses and quality video streaming has opened up avenues that were not available less than a decade ago. These new tools helped Mendoza create a robust and sturdy web platform that could host her online booking system alongside video streaming and her full courses.

Mendoza says, "It all seemed impossible at first. I saw the solution but making one thing work with another and still be quick and accessible without long buffering times just seemed not possible. I had to spend a lot of time wrapping my head around the site architecture before I could even speak with a web developer who would begin the process of getting the site built. I had to know what I wanted first as otherwise, the web team would be wasting time chasing their tails while I tried to explain my crazy concepts to them. It was mad at first, but I got there and learned a lot in the process."

The time dedicated to learning a new set of skills and developing a clear idea of how websites and online courses work has definitely paid off for Mendoza as word of mouth of the self-help and coaching platform is growing. Social media has also helped create a veritable buzz around the service without the company having to do a lot of initial promotion.

NZ Psychics is growing steadily and it is fueled by the number of valuable services that the new platform offers.

The new website offers; Online Life Coaching Courses, Booking Platform To Visit A Life Mentor, Online Life Mentoring Via Video Stream, Chatroom For Members To Share & Grow.

All of these new life coaching services can be accessed and viewed online through the new platform which blends traditional life coaching services with modern online solutions.

Mendoza says, "Modern life is very difficult and we cannot be expected to know how to handle every situation with confidence. While our parents may have taught us how to handle experience that they themselves have dealt with, we will undoubtedly experience new things that they didn't and couldn't prepare us for. Not only that, but we are all different with varying coping mechanisms - some better suited to handle tough situations than others. I understand that people need help in life and I have built this website for them. It's a safe environment to get the advice and mentoring you need, no matter how difficult or complex."

The NZ Psychics Team is bolstered by a number of members that all have experience working in different fields. From love and relationships to nutrition and career coaching, alongside Mendoza and her experience coaching people in all walks of life. Currently, the service is available 24/7 with the notable exception being the one on one consultations which fall under regular business hours.

NZ Psychics can be found through their website and are ready to help, visit Marilyn Mendoza and her team.
