May 06, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -
Hertford, UK based New Skills Academy (NSA), a private online training company, is pleased to announce the expansion of the company?s educational scope. Their new courses are intended to give their students an education in fields where there are skill shortages.

NSA CEO Chris Morgan has been open regarding the academy?s intentions and expectations for the newest set of courses they have made available for their students. He said, "We want to ensure that our students have best possible advantage when seeking to improve their career prospects. For that reason, we are always innovating and expanding the different sets of courses that we offer."

One of the most common concerns that students have when choosing an online course is whether the certifications they receive are recognised by other entities, particularly the companies they hope to eventually be employed by.

When Morgan was confronted with this question, he stated, ?The recognition of the company?s courses is, indeed, a common worry among our prospective students. We have been reviewed and approved by the CPD and other competent industry experts. Our online courses have also been evaluated by the IVCAS, who determined that we meet their criteria for functionality and quality. We have also been accredited by the CMA and the IAO, among other accrediting bodies. Our students can be sure that if they join us, they will be receiving the services of a program that is widely recognised, and accepted among the competent entities of the industry.? Morgan also commented on the company?s comprehensive focus, and commitment to providing their students a program that suits their needs. He said, ?We are committed to helping our student attain recognised qualifications in relevant areas of different industries. We want to give them the best chance at getting the job that they want. Our program is designed to help them, regardless of the individual situations that they may be going through.?

Over the past decade, online learning has become a common matter all across the world. As time passes, different industries have had to adapt to the ever changing needs of their customers, and there was only one industry that seemed to be immune to the immune to the flow of time: the education industry. However, over the same period, universities have been experiencing an increase in their dropout rates alongside a significant decrease in their enrollments. For the first time since the education industry was born, they were now obligated to adapt and innovate to fit the needs of a population who no longer had either the time, nor the means, to study full time.

The online learning industry was born out of that need for innovation, rapidly leading to the creation of new companies to fulfill these openings in the market. New Skills Academy has stood above the rest, due to their commitment to innovation and their dedication to fulfilling their student?s needs.

Over their history, NSA has been known worldwide for the excellent array of online courses that they provide for students. The company, now with an extensive record of success stories, has dedicated their focus to helping their students attain recognised qualifications in all sorts of different areas.

The company?s efforts and devotion towards the community are reflected in the students? responses. New Skills Academy averages a near perfect score on multiple review platforms, where students have shared their experience with the courses provided by the institution, and how they have helped those students in their job search.

A review written by a graduate student on Trustpilot said, ?New Skills Academy offers an excellent program. I have done six of their courses, three of which are diploma level and rest are CPD certified. Their courses are offered at great price. I would recommend any person who needs to gain further knowledge in any subject, or who is a novice, to purchase a course, as, regardless of the busy lifestyle that one may have, the company makes it easy to not be overwhelmed by the information that is given.?
