Driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol is, under the Criminal Code, a very serious offense that can have very harsh repercussions from fines to jail time to the cancellation of licenses. Therefore, a competent DUI attorney will often attempt to ascertain whether the charged party was actually under the influence, legally, at the time of their arrest. They may question how accurate the test in question was, especially if the arresting officer carried it out improperly. Find out more here: Drug Recognition Expert.

Those found to be driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol can face very serious consequences that could leave them in a very difficult financial situation or even cost them their license. Trials for drugged driving are contested on highly technical grounds based primarily on evidence collected from the site where the accused was pulled over, in addition to eyewitness accounts. The attorney chosen to represent a client in such cases can make the difference between paying expensive fines and possible losing their license, and getting off without having to deal with either.

DUI offenses have, over the years, been the most common criminal case to be on trial in the courts in Los Angeles or California, and the number of DUI arrests goes up every year. As Los Angeles DUI Lawyer states, ?The most heavily-litigated criminal cases in Los Angeles, CA are related to DUI laws. However, the proof for impaired driving and later conviction is largely based on the observation of eye-witnesses and the investigating officer. While proof of an over 80mg offense entails taking a breath sample or blood sample to measure the level of Blood Alcohol Concentration (BAC), it can be more complex in the case of impaired driving due to the consumption of drugs.?
