ShowerMeister, based in Mississauga, Ontario, Canada, has announced that they have released a new review of shower filters for hard water. They have published an article that presents their top five choices for shower filters for hard water. In this article, their top choice is the AquaBliss shower filter, which is capable of purifying the water and it can remove metals, chlorine, pesticides, fungi and all types of bacteria.

Mike Chrest, a spokesperson for ShowerMeister, says, "If you live somewhere where the water is dirty and smells bad or if you want to have your well water softened and want to make sure it's fully clean, you need a best shower filter check out our reviews. Getting the top filtration system might be a hard task for some people because they don't know what to look for in them, but you don't have to worry because ShowerMeister is here for you."

As mentioned previously in the article that can be accessed at <https://showermeister.com/best-shower-filters/>, their top choice for shower filters for hard water is the AquaBliss. It has proven to be excellent in getting rid of hard water, which makes it appropriate for those who use well water or those who live in an acreage, farm, or in the country. ShowerMeister recommends that homeowners use a shower filter for hard water because of the various benefits, which include healthy water, better skin, softening of hard water, softer hair, elimination of harmful chemicals, and elimination of odours.

The AquaBliss utilizes a three-stage filtration method, which is made up of KDF55, Calcium Sulfite, and activated carbon. Calcium sulfite has already been proven to be more effective than activated carbon in eliminating various unwanted substances like cadmium, mercury, chlorine, etc. The activated carbon is used to get rid of other contaminants and impurities.

Their second top choice in the article is Aquasana AQ-14100. The article points out that it is capable of removing up to 90 percent of chlorine from the water, and even after the first shower, people will notice a difference in their skin's smoothness. This shower filter makes use of a combination of copper-zinc oxidation media that cannot be found on other shower filters because they have patented it. According to the article, the Aquasana can fit to any shower head although it is a bit too big, particularly for those who have a small shower cabin.

The number three choice for shower filters for hard water is the Aqua Elegante. According to the article, the Aqua Elegante is quite luxurious looking but it would be very difficult to match the colour with the style of the bathroom because not many bathrooms are bronze coloured. An important advantage is that it does not reduce the pressure while getting rid of the chemicals from the water. It is noted that the Aqua Elegante can effectively remove chlorine from the water. In fact, it can eliminate up to 90-95 percent of the chlorine. It should be pointed out that less chlorine in the shower water means a fresh shower, better hair, better skin, and more.

At number four is the Sprite HO2-WH-M shower head. This is a bit different from the others in that it has a massaging head that can be removed or replaced with a different shower head. It is small enough to bring along when travelling but a disadvantage is that it is incapable of getting rid of chlorine.

At number five is the Apex MR-7011 S. It is easy to install and it is compatible with almost all modern shower heads. However, it will need to be replaced after 12 to 16 months.
