May 09, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Longmont, Colorado based company Metro Appliance Repair Pros is pleased to announce that they are ready to welcome new customers. Newly arrived to the area, the company has already received great positive feedback from the community, and is eager to keep showing local residents and businesses what they are capable of.

Following their inauguration in the autumn of 2018, the company expressed their gratitude to the Longmont community for welcoming them in the new market. Despite being new to the area, the repair services company is committed to delivering top-notch services to all of their clients in and around Longmont.

One of their early customers shared a review of the company's services, saying, "I called them over because my water heater was leaking a lot of water all over my service room. The company dispatched a team the same day who quickly inspected my heater, determined the failure, and had it fixed very quickly. They were very thoughtful and explained to me the whole process as it developed, making sure that I understood what needed to be done and the reason for it. The Metro Appliance Repair Pros team did a great job making sure I felt comfortable all throughout the process. I would choose this company all over again, as my experience with them has been great so far, and I will definitely recommend Metro Appliance Repair Pros' services to my friends and family."

Paul Matranga, a company representative, said, "Our purpose in the Longmont community is to deliver the best service possible, at a price that fits every community member's budget. Having served our first few customers in the area, we now aim to surpass our future customer's expectations. We will be striving towards improving our services constantly, so as to not let our beloved community members down. We had been looking forward to opening our doors to the Longmont community for a long time, and now that we've arrived, we will not settle down with anything short of perfection when it comes to the services that we offer."

The company is able to deliver Water Heater repairs, Dishwasher repair, and Kitchen Appliance repairs, among many others. The Longmont based company offers a complete selection of repair services to fit the needs of every customer. They take measures to ensure that every repair procedure is carefully carried out, safeguarding the integrity of the customer's appliances. The company understands that each customer values their time, and so endeavours to complete their work as quickly and efficiently as possible. However, they also believe that a project must be done right the first time, so customers can expect to have their appliances back to working condition after the company's first visit alone.

As this satisfied customer said, "I wanted to stop here and say what a great job you guys did on my fridge repair. It had been running loud for a long time. Your technicians had it fixed in less than an hour! You guys are fantastic!?"

Matranga stated that, "We are very lucky to have a team of professionals with a wealth of experience behind them. There is no job too complex, or even too simple, for the Metro Appliance Repair Pros' team. If it is even remotely possible to repair an artifact, then our team will be capable of it. I have yet to meet a more capable team in the field than the one we currently have under our command. No matter how old the appliance in question may be, or how new, our guys will know it inside-out."

For more information on the company's services, or to contract Metro Appliance Repair Pros' team of experts, one may contact Paul Matranga. More contact information can be found on the company's website, where the company also offers quote estimates. In addition to this, the company runs a blog section on their website, where they publish useful articles regarding the care and maintenance of home appliances.
