As the weather warms up, businesses and residences start to focus on maintaining the outside of the property. It is important that custodial departments and home owners don't lose sight of what needs to be done inside. Carpets should not be neglected. Loves Dry Carpet Cleaning offers insight on the importance of having carpets cleaned year round.

Carpets that are properly cleaned and maintained have a prolonged life of the carpet. Regular carpet cleaning using the extraction method can increase the life of carpets significantly, protecting your floor-covering investment. Properly cleaned carpets protect indoor air quality. Carpets trap airborne pollutants; however, eventually those pollutants must be removed in order to protect the carpet and maintain indoor air quality.

Routinely cleaning one's carpets makes them easier to maintain. Most carpet soiling is made up of dry soils; when carpets are kept thoroughly cleaned on a regular basis, most dry soils can be removed with regular vacuuming. Professional cleaning removes spots and stains. As with other soils, spots and stains can attract more soiling. Removing them promptly protects carpeting from damage. It also helps to prevent buildup of allergens and bacteria. Moist soiling of carpets can result in the buildup of several unhealthy contaminants.

While vacuums don't leave residues, some carpet cleaning machines do. If the equipment or products are old or cheaper, they can be inefficient and leave some of the cleaning solution behind. The equipment used by Loves Dry Carpet Cleaning is always updated and uses commercial cleaning products to restore carpeting to a like-new condition. The company also employs the hot water extraction technique to achieve the best results, leaving the fibers free of all dirt and stains.

Regular carpet cleanings help to remove dust mites and bedbugs that may have found a home in carpets. This is an important factor for health and sanitation, the company says.

Properly cleaned carpets maintain the carpet's warranty. Most carpet warranties require that carpets be cleaned using the extraction method within a specific amount of time, usually every 12 to 18 months. One of the major benefits of a professional carpet cleaning service is that it helps extend the life of the carpet. Removing this built up of dirt and debris will help improve the longevity of the carpet as dust and other debris are more likely to adhere to a dirty carpet than a clean carpet.
