July 21, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Pamela Wible, M.D. in Eugene, OR, has just announced a scholarship for medical students. The Judith Wible Scholarship will award $10,000 for medical students who are visionary women in medicine.

The $10,000 scholarship for medical students will be awarded each year, with up to 10 finalists being selected on or before December 31 annually. Finalists will be offered full scholarships to attend Wible's Physician Teleseminar and Retreat, which is held bi-annually. From those who attend the course, up to three winners will be selected annually and each will receive a $10,000 tuition payment to the medical school of their choice.

"My mom and I are rebuilding health care from the ground up," says Wible, whose mother, Judith, was also an innovator in the medical field.

The medical student and physician retreat is a 12-week program that offers weekly modules, recorded teleclasses, business strategy sessions, and online support. The first 40 to register also receive a 5-day hot springs retreat in Oregon with live educational sessions and various spa services.

Pamela Wible, M.D., pioneered the first ideal medical clinic designed entirely by patients, and has taught hundreds of physicians how to open their ideal clinics. Physicians who are leaders in the Ideal Medical Care Movement will also teach sessions, offering their own secrets to success.

"I loved it," says Michelle, a medical student who attended the retreat previously. "I started my internship knowing exactly what I wanted to do after, and having the knowledge to actually put my plan into action."

Wible is offering the scholarship to support innovative women in medicine. "I know how difficult it is to pay for med school, let alone taking the extra money to fund a retreat. These sessions offer the essential business skills that students never learn in med school." Those interested in applying for the scholarship can visit Dr. Pamela Wible's website (www.IdealMedicalCare.org).
