Weight Loss Clinic, Dr. Vadim Surikov based in New York, New York, recently received a stellar review from a patient. The weight loss NYC practice provides a range of services that are designed to help their clients to look and feel their very best.

The review states, "Met with Dr. Surikov yesterday and am compelled to write a review. Very different from other physicians specializing in weight loss who just prescribe medications and send you on your way. Dr. Surikov takes a very generous amount of time and asks very detailed and specific questions about your lifestyle, medical history and overall health before deciding on a treatment plan. He can (and does) prescribe medication to aid in weight loss, but also tailors specific regimens for your individual treatment plan. He is extremely knowledgeable and clearly explains the causes and effects of existing medical conditions you have. From the moment you meet him, you will be absolutely confident that you made the best possible choice for your health. I am very grateful to have found him. Thank you Dr. Surikov!"

Dr. Surikov says that this is not the first such review that the practice has received and that the entire staff sincerely hopes that they see more like this in the near future. The doctor states that their goal is to help clients to lose the weight that has been bogging them down for some time, and enjoy healthier and happier versions of themselves.

"We simply want to help people with weight loss in NYC," says Dr. Surikov. "We know how difficult it can be to lose weight, particularly for those who have struggled with weight loss their entire lives. Our goal is to help all of our clients to enjoy the feeling of seeing that weight come off and keeping it off, and we have a wide range of practices that can help with this."

Dr. Surikov specializes in medical weight loss. The doctor states that every single client receives a thorough physical examination prior to starting his program. He adds that his program is designed to help patients to lose weight without feeling hungry, which is something that often causes diets to fail.

"People get hungry when they are dieting," says Dr. Surikov. "And normally, that hunger drives them to eat something that is not good for them. If they are on the go for instance, they may grab a candy bar or a bag of chips. At lunch, someone who is hungry may opt for a fast food burger as opposed to something healthier like a salad. Alleviating the hunger is the main concern for doctors who want to help their patients to lose weight."

Dr. Surikov states that many of his patients have come to him and remarked about how well the weight loss program is working for them, and how they do not feel as if they are dieting. Patients are not hungry as they are with other diet programs, as is revealed in the many reviews that the practice has received over just a very short time period.

Dr. Surikov says that because this is a medical weight loss program, it is much safer for individuals than fad diets and other programs that are currently on the market. He adds that patients are monitored to ensure that they are in their best possible health while they are on the program, and urges those who have struggled with their weight to contact the clinic and speak with one of their weight loss doctors in NYC.

Those who are interested can visit the practice online to learn more about Dr. Surikov and his weight loss program, or read through any of the reviews from his past patients who rave about their experience and their overall results. The practice is located in New York City, but Dr. Surikov states that they are happy to answer questions for clients from anywhere in the world.
