June 05, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

A Massey, Stotser & Nichols, PC (MSN) partner, Randy Nichols, recently had the honor of presenting an oral argument to the Alabama Court of Civil Appeals. Nichols handles a multitude of appellate matters every year, but it is quite rare for the Appellate Court to request that the lawyers travel to Montgomery to present arguments. This was only the second case argued before the Court of Civil Appeals this year. MSN is proud of Nichols' achievements, as well as the expertise and skill he brings to the firm.

Nichols was born and raised in Virginia and attended Duke University in North Carolina, where he pursued his college degree and his passion for basketball. He then attended law school at the University of Virginia. In 1986, he moved to Alabama and has since then added college football fanatic to his already impressive resume. He practices all aspects of family law litigation and mediates family law disputes.

Nichols is a certified mediator for general civil litigation and domestic relations, and holds a certification in family law from the National Board of Trial Advocacy. He has taught a number of classes and seminars at the Cumberland School of Law and the Birmingham School of Law and is also a frequent teacher at Continuing Legal Education Seminars. Nichols is a member of the Alabama State Bar Association, Alabama's Family

Law Section, and the Alabama Chapter of the American Academy of Matrimonial Lawyers.

MSN itself has a team of highly qualified and experienced transactional attorneys, with knowledge and experience across a broad range of fields.

Initially founded in 1977 by Timothy Massey, the firm has become one of the most well-known legal practices in Alabama. MSN has represented hundreds of individuals in legal cases over the past 40 years and aims to continue providing the high standards of legal representation to all of its clients.
