June 05, 2019

June 05, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Reno, NV based Sunshine Retirement Living is pleased to announce the addition of Reno's Stone Valley Assisted Living & Memory Care to its established network of modern retirement communities, spanning 13 states in the US. Founded in the year 2010, Sunshine Retirement Living is committed to the belief that all retirees deserve access to modern amenities and person-centered care. For them, each new community and new state they reach represents the opportunity to impact more lives in a positive and meaningful way.

Their newest addition to the community is located near Canyon Creek Park in Reno, where Stone Valley provides assisted living and memory care services. The care center relies on a highly qualified team, working 24-Hours a day to ensure the safety and security for residents, regardless of their age, attending to any special needs they may have.

During the last few years, seniors have changed the way they view retirement as a whole, as the prospect of assisted living and memory care becomes an ever more attractive option. Stone Valley revolutionized its care model to respond to those evolving needs and expectations, aligning well with Sunshine Retirement Living's own model of care. Stone Valley offers state-of-the-art facilities, luxurious amenities, and person-centered care that is based on the most recent research available regarding Alzheimer's dementia and the natural aging process.

Representatives of Stone Valley Assisted Living & Memory Care stated that, "Most residents make Stone Valley their permanent home; therefore we are solely focused on making their permanent stay as welcoming and comfortable as possible. Still, we offer respite care and short-term stays for those who need it, as our promise is to offer a place they can call Home as long as they wish to."

Stone Valley Assisted Living & Memory care is best known for offering a robust activity program featuring activities that stimulate the physical, mental, intellectual, social, and spiritual well-being of their residents. These activities include strength training, horseshoes, devotions, fitness classes, movie nights, manicures, and local outings, as well as special events that are regularly scheduled to prevent a monotonous routine for those who desire it.

The care center stated that their residents are never pressured to attend activities that don't appeal to them. Each resident has an opportunity to choose the events that speak to their interests and sit out when they'd rather stay home. This special programming is designed to nurture Memory Care's residents, and allows them to indulge at will in activities such as music therapy, validation techniques, aromatherapy, and more.

A representative of Memory care spoke on behalf of the staff at the Reno, Nevada assisted living community, saying, "We recognize that disrupting lifetime routines can cause stress and impact wellness. We make a special effort to maintain the most essential routines that a community resident has established prior to moving in. Some of the most common cases come from residents who want to sleep in and keep it easy throughout the day, while others prefer to wake early and keep a meticulous routine. All of our efforts are dedicated to ensuring that they feel comfortable regardless of their preferences." This reflects the Sunshine Retirement Living network's person-centered care model, which is one of the most commonly complimented aspects of their services among residents and their relatives.

Sunshine Retirement Living stated that the current residents of Stone Valley Assisted Living & Memory Care can expect to continue receiving the same quality of care that they are accustomed to, and they will even get to experience improvements in different areas as a result of the new ownership.

Caregivers will now enjoy access to extensive training and ongoing education opportunities, ensuring they continue to have the tools and resources they need to provide compassionate, competent care. Residents will now also have access to the organization's Easy Move and Travel programs, providing move-in coordination, and free lodging and dining, in 14 US states. The new directors state that most of the resident's experiences will remain unchanged to ensure comfort and consistency.
