BodyCandy, a body jewelry and accessories store in Amherst, New York is pleased to debut a new collection of stylish nose rings to its customers. On its website, BodyCandy.com, nose rings take on a new level of sophistication and class at an affordable price. Nose Rings on BodyCandy.com's website are divided into categories such as top selling nose rings, micro nose rings, 14kt gold nose rings, and nose hoops to name a few, to ensure optimum online user experience.

Tracing its history since ancient times, nose rings became highly popular in countries like India, Nepal and Pakistan as a form of art, social standing and beautification. Currently, the tradition has been passed along and adopted by many countries across the world like the United States as a form of self-expression.

Nose rings come in different styles according to the user's preference. There are nose screws, nose bones, L-shaped nose rings, nose hoops and fishtail nose rings as well as septum jewelry including the newly popular septum clicker. These nose rings can be placed in the nostrils or nasal septum. By way of comparison, a nose bone looks like a stud earring which is usually round with a small bump on the end, while a nose screw has a protruding curve or semi-circular shape. Both of these nose rings securely remain in the nose and are a popular choice for the majority. An L-shaped nose ring on the other hand is a good option during the healing period and seems to be a customer favorite while a fishtail nose ring is typically a long and straight piece that can be custom bent by your professional piercer to snugly fit the nose.

With over 500,000 likes, BodyCandy.com's Facebook page shares some of its creations, product offerings and featured customers. Nicole Szymanski, a representative of the company said, "We are so happy and humbled at the same time for all the attention and positive reviews that we are continuously getting from our customers. Without them, we don't have a business which is why we want to thank them from the bottom of our hearts for their support".

Meanwhile, BodyCandy.com's Instagram account also has a great number of followers who can check for different accessories being donned by customers as well as for special promos and discounts. This is also the platform where the company chooses to market its products and services to people from all walks of life.
