Implant Centre Martinko, based in Trieste, Italy, has announced that they are offering their all-on-six dental implants service not just in Italy but also in Croatia. The All on Six Implant Centre Martinko is offering is due to the realization of people who have lost their natural teeth and have been using the standard mobile prostheses that the latter fails to fully restore the aesthetics and functionality of their smile. The All on Six dental implants service makes use of six dental implants to provide a dependable, stable and long-lasting support for a fixed prosthesis, in contrast to the standard mobile prosthesis.

Dr. Damir Martinko from Implant Centre Martinko says, "We're very happy to announce that our All on Six dental implants service is now available both in Italy and in Croatia. Now people in both countries who have lost their teeth can now confidently smile again. Unlike the conventional mobile prosthesis, the new service eliminates that feeling of having an unstable prosthesis in the mouth. With the All on Six dental implants, our patients would be able to enjoy again the process of eating, drinking, and even talking and laughing without worrying that their prosthesis might fall off."

Dr. Markinko wants to emphasize the various benefits of the All on Six dental implants service. It makes use of six dental implants that are strategically positioned throughout the maxillar or mandibular bone. A fixed prosthesis is then attached to the six dental implants. The most important advantage is that the patient would be able to enjoy having new fixed teeth in just one day because the insertion procedure is simple. And once the fixed prosthesis has been affixed to the dental implants, the patient can go back to having a great smile and confidence.

Before the All on Six dental implant process is performed, the dentist examines first the volume and quality of the bone. This is done through the use of state of the art equipment, such as the CBCT 3D. In the event that the volume of the bone in the posterior area of the jaw is insufficient to provide a stable environment for the dental implants, a maxillary sinus lift is conducted to regenerate the maxillary bone. In the event that there is severe bone loss or bone resorption, blocks that are obtained from the posterior area of the jaw or from the chin are transplanted to the area where more volume is required.

Meanwhile, patients need now worry about the maxillary sinus lift procedure because it is safe and painless, particularly because local anesthesia will be applied. For this procedure, the dentist opens the gingiva to expose the jaw bone from where tissue is obtained. After that, the dentist will raise the sinus membrane and introduce autologous or synthetic material into the area where the volume of the bone is not enough. A plasma rich with growth factors is then injected into the area.

Patients who have undergone the All on Six dental implant procedure have noted that that it was as if they got their natural teeth back after the fixed prosthesis has been installed. The All on Six dental implant procedure was also found to modify the face appearance because losing all teeth usually causes patients to appear old as a result of the upper lip and lower lip retracting into the oral cavity.

And with the All on Six dental implants ready to be subjected to immediate loading around 24 hours after the procedure, patients would be able to enjoy full use of their brand new teeth in just one day. The result is that they have regained both their aesthetic and functional use of their teeth plus the youthful appearance of their face has returned.
