Founded in 1997, Alliance Awards was originally a large format print retailer. Over the following years, the company evolved into the full service promotional product producer it is today. They offer a wide range of items and services, and have managed to become one of the most well-known and trusted companies in their field. With over 40 years of combined experience in the industry, Alliance Awards has the know-how and the resources to transform any client?s idea into a finished product. One of their clients was quoted saying, ?For the past 40 years Alliance Awards has been making prestigious awards from elegant Acrylic Awards to traditional Trophies. Alliance Awards can develop any award idea into a finished product!?

The company also supplies clients all around the world. ?Whether you need it delivered down the street or around the world,? says the company, ?we'll be able to accommodate you.? Usually, production takes 5-10 days, with larger orders taking up to 20 days to complete. Special order items?made out of bronze, for example?may require even more time. Alliance Awards provides a delivery date for each order, by which time the order should be finished and in the hands of the client. There are a number of special rush services available for most items as well. Express Service offers delivery in 48 hours and Priority services promises delivery in 24 hours. Both services can be claimed for a nominal fee.

Alliance Awards is committed to providing high quality products, and will work to rectify any errors made during the production process. ?In the event we make an error, we will replace the incorrect pieces(s) as quickly as possible at our expense,? says the company through their website. ?In the event that the error was on your part (i.e. incorrect spelling of a name) we will still replace the incorrect piece(s) as quickly as possible for a nominal fee. Regardless of the error we will make every effort to have the corrected awards sent out to you in time for your presentation.? One can also request a refund in cases where they receive the incorrect item. All refunds must be approved by Alliance Awards? customer service department, but it is quite possible to get a refund, provided the client meets all the requirements for a refund.
