Montebello, California based American Quality Management (AQM) recently celebrated the 2019 World Accreditation Day by promoting the usage of the AS9100 system, in a bid to raise awareness of this vital certification. The AS9100 certification will help attendees define methods, and develop a clear path, to address issues in quality management systems.

The theme for this year's World Accreditation Day focuses on how accreditation provides added value to supply chains. Supply chains play a vital role in delivering products and services for consumers, businesses, and the public sector in a timely, cost-efficient, and quality manner. This is an area of expertise in which American Quality Management excels, and is able to directly impact through their consultation, as they are able to develop plans and strategies to greatly improve a business' production and quality standards.

Connie Smith, a spokesperson for American Quality Management, invited the community to learn more about these methodologies, saying, "There is no better way to celebrate this year's World Accreditation Day than by learning about one of the leading methods to ensure a product's quality, the AS9100. This method is the way to go if you are looking to push your organization to new heights and elevate a product's quality to the next level."

The AS9100 helps companies to improve the performance of their aerospace systems through quality assurance checks, and the same steps are followed to monitor quality during the manufacture of aerospace technologies. This does not only ensure a product's quality, but further enhances its safety as well, leading to a product that is unmatched in both aspects. American Quality Management is a leader in the industry, renowned for their stringent training services.

"The reason I would highly recommend you is that you take a partnership approach to our quality system," states Johanne Schwartz, a representative of Hydro Fitting MFG. Corp, in a review showcased on American Quality Management's website. "Your incredible knowledge and professionalism have not only helped us address the requirements to be certified, but you've taken the time to get to know us so our system really is value-added to our company." AQM frequently receives glowing testimonials and reviews of this nature, and they boast a history of 100% customer satisfaction.

American Quality Management states that their methods are developed in accordance with each trainee's requirements as well as the company they are planning to apply the quality assurance techniques in. Smith says, "Anyone can help you become certified in AS9100, or any other method. What we offer is not only training towards getting the certification. We promise our trainees we will help them improve their system and develop a strategy according to their unique business methods so that they can get the absolute most out of their new systems—that will not only satisfy regulatory and statutory requirements, but also go above and beyond by transforming the business into an ultra-efficient quality producer or service. We are leading AS9100 and ISO Consultants, and we have helped countless companies grow and increase their quality exponentially in record time."

The company is able to guarantee such results due to their extensive research and knowledge in the field. They explain that, before any training begins, their consultants visit the trainees' company for a full business day to evaluate their AS9100 opportunity and how it would operate on a regular basis. Following this, the consultants discuss some of the more troubling areas they observe during their stay at the company, without any compromises whatsoever. "We're out to prove that we are the best at what we do, and we prefer that you put us to the test before you even think about hiring us," asserts Smith. "If for any reason you are not completely satisfied by our approach or if we don't live up to our reputation, then we'll shake hands, pack our things, and part ways."
