July 05, 2019 -

Mesilla, New Mexico based Rio Bravo Media LLC is proud to announce that they are now recognized as a Google Trusted Photographer for the Google Street View for Businesses program. The company offers one of the most effective ways to improve a business' online presence. They assert that they are the most innovative solution to arrive since businesses were first introduced to Google Maps itself.

A spokesperson of Rio Bravo Media, says, "We're very happy to add Google Trusted Photographer to our qualifications. This should allow us to further expand our services within the community, and further improve the quality of work they are already used to getting from us."

The company explains that the concept of a Google Trusted Photographer is simple. They visit a business, a bar, or coffee shop, for example, take a few 360-degree photos, and create virtual tours that will be featured in the business' Google My Business card. This is one of the simplest, yet most effective, ways to improve a business' online presence on the most famous search engine, Google. Furthermore, a customer that views one of these tours in Google Maps is more likely to visit the company, as navigating the place will encourage them to visit the business in person and experience the real thing.

Rio Bravo Media's spokesperson says, "By using the latest Street View technology, we will bring your business to life in a high-quality 360-degree, interactive tour. This will give customers a better sense of the layout, decor, and ambiance of your business. Even if they decide not to visit your business on this occasion, you'll have left an impact in their mind, and they will be more likely to consider you as a first option in the future."

The impact of virtual tours in business was studied during market research conducted in July 2015. The purpose of this study was to determine whether or not this type of marketing affected consumers? interest in local businesses. It was found that, when searching for businesses, consumers use mapping products 44% of the time. On average, listings with photos and a virtual tour were at least twice as likely to generate interest and an in-person visit, over businesses who only had outdoor pictures of their location.

This proves that virtual tours are not only an amazingly effective way to increase a business' traffic, but it is also one of the most affordable?and provide the best conversion rates for the money invested. Customers of Rio Bravo Media also affirm that they enjoyed a positive surge in business once they installed their own virtual tours.

A company that recently tried similar services to those of what Rio Bravo Media is offering, provided by an overseas competitor said,"I was skeptical at first, but, due to the insistence of one of my friends who said the traffic to his business doubled after doing virtual tours, I decided to take the plunge and try it."

There's many companies that have used Google to gain overnight success, a tech startup in California said, "Ever since I updated my Google My Business page with a virtual tour, I have received many compliments from my customers who said they found us through Google and were captivated by the ambiance of my business. I can't recommend these services enough as, even though I was skeptical, the results proved me wrong."

Rio Bravo Media, now recognized by Google as a Google Street View Trusted Photographer, is available for hire in the Las Cruces New Mexico area. Interested parties may visit the company's website for a thorough description of their services, as well as a contact form to schedule an initial consultation to discuss their services and pricing. The local photographers also invite members of the community to connect with them through their official Facebook page, where their followers can always stay up to date with the company?s most recent news and important corporate announcements.
