

Brisbane Funeral Home: A Funeral Director Providing Low Cost Funerals

July 26, 2019

July 26, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Michael Hutchinson Funeral Director, a funeral home in Queensland, aims to give its clients a different experience from what they would get at other funeral homes around the country. At Michael Hutchinson, clients are met with transparent, upfront prices with no hidden extra costs.

Losing a loved one can be a difficult experience and having to pay excessively expensive bills can turn an already difficult time into a complete nightmare. Michael Hutchinson Funeral Director understands the emotional and financial toll that is inflicted by the events surrounding the death of a loved one, which is why they strive to make the whole experience as smooth as possible for grieving families. The funeral home offers some of the lowest prices in Queensland, perhaps even the whole of Australia.

The media has been making a number of references to funeral homes ripping people off by charging exorbitant prices for their services?and not without good reason. Some funeral homes take advantage of the fact that their clients are often in a highly distressed state when making funeral arrangements in order to charge extremely high prices. With this being the case, it is understandable that the media has been talking about funeral homes, ?ripping people off by charging like a wounded bull.?

The last thing a grieving family needs is to wade through deception to get a clear and direct answer regarding the cost of the funeral?and that, unfortunately, is exactly what they get whenever they visit most of the funeral homes in Queensland. Michael Hutchinson, however, places great emphasis on transparency, making an effort to do things differently. Clients that visit the funeral home can expect that what they are told is how things actually are, and the quotations they receive are similarly an accurate representation of the amount they should expect to pay.

?We required a straightforward, no ceremony cremation for mum,? says one former client named Hamish McDuff. The experience was, according to Hamish, as simple and straightforward as they had hoped for, and completely transparent. His review continues, ?Ian was helpful with our queries, the information we had to complete online was simple, and the process was respectful and priced fairly. If you require a straightforward cremation with staff that actually answer the phone, reply to emails, and are helpful, I would recommend them.? Find out more on the funeral home Facebook page.

Michael Hutchinson Funeral Director offers a variety of funerals based on the client?s personal requirements, financial situation, and the circumstances of their loved one?s death. ?Death can occur in various ways and in some cases you are required to follow a specific protocol,? notes the funeral home. Clients are encouraged to contact them as soon as possible in order to determine how to begin with the preparations for the funeral. Different deaths are treated differently under the law and so it is important to determine what needs to be done and when.

A number of clients have left positive reviews of the funeral home?s services. Aasif R., in a five star review, states, ?I would like to thank Michael Hutchison funerals for the service they provided today for Luke B. I could not fault anything; the service was held to the highest level of respect and dignity. I highly recommend them.?

Another client, Michael Hoffman, states, ?They looked after my parents; very professional and caring. Always communicate to let you know what?s happening. I certainly would recommend them to look after your loved ones.?

Skinner's Funerals and Murphy Funerals are firms that Michael Hutchinson Funeral Director has purchased from original owners over the years and developed into a single entity that provides high quality service all across Australia. They cater to a particular need or geographical locality to serve the community.
