Vaughan, ON based Mazzeo Law Barristers & Solicitors recently reached out to the community in an effort to explain how their divorce mediation services can help guide a divorce to its conclusion with minimum conflict between the parties involved. The Vaughan family law lawyers have led many clients through divorces and separations, and they have noted that clients often struggle to settle on a custody agreement.

While custody is an extremely important facet of mediation that affects all parties involved, the firm asserts that the child is always on the losing side. Paul Mazzeo, lawyer and founder of the law firm, says, "While having a divorce is hard for everyone involved, the main concern on the spouse's mind should be the well-being of their children. If it's a difficult situation for the spouses, they can be sure it is twice as hard and stressful for their offspring, who in most cases are too young to understand what is going on."

Mazzeo explains that while the spouse's first thoughts when considering a divorce is to think of how their child will respond to it, they often lose sight of ways to protect their children when going through the process. However, Mazzeo Law Barristers & Solicitors firmly believes in the necessity of alleviating this conflict. Through a team of specialists with extensive experience in family law, the firm is able to assist, guide, and mediate between spouses to settle on a child custody agreement.

Through their role as an unbiased mediator, the firm represents an invaluable asset that all involved parties with an effective method of communication. This saves clients from any unnecessary confrontation, which in turn minimises the stress that is put on the clients? children.

The firm maintains that its child custody mediation team is able to consistently find success by coming up with innovative strategies to reach a successful conclusion. They are experts whose out-of-the-box thinking allows them to develop a customised and individualised plan that addresses their client?s unique situation. Throughout the process, the foremost priority of the mediator is to ensure that the child enjoys a healthy relationship with each party?while simultaneously saving them from any custody discussion related stress.

According the Mazzeo, the best practice is to involve a legal mediator as early as possible in the divorce process. This will ensure that both parties know and understand their legal rights and obligations before making any major decisions that could lead to regret in the future. Mazzeo Law Barristers & Solicitors excels in this role, as they have accumulated skills and experience in the sphere of divorce and family law that allow them to ensure the quick and easy resolution of a child custody agreement.
