Adfilic Introduces Its Digital Luggage Scale To The Market

July 29, 2015

July 29, 2015 -
Canada-based electronics and devices company Adfilic, has just launched its own version of a digital luggage scale. The company's desire to change the negative trend of the luggage scale industry in terms of producing run off the mill luggage weight scales gave birth to the much anticipated product.

Since their inception in 2013, Adfilic worked hard to attain their current status as a breakthrough manufacturer. What started out as a small family store that sells bluetooth speakers, chargers and cheap mobile phones has grown immensely and has taken the luggage scale trade to the next level. With their new digital luggage weight scale, travelers can be assured that it will provide the accurate weight for their bags, whether in kilos or pounds as seen in the large LCD display.

As part of their commitment to continuously innovate and provide high quality products at reasonable prices, Adfilic is offering a 40% off holiday summer sale of the digital luggage scale on Amazon. James Chien, spokesperson for Adfilic, said, "Even if we're relatively new in the business, we want our customers to know that we are dedicated in providing top of the line products at relatively low prices. We're all about quality and exceeding customer's expectations."

Selling at $15.79, the digital luggage weighing scale is a welcome treat to fliers and travelers who wish to avoid the hassle and frustration of being charged with excess luggage fees. Made of premium stainless steel and ergonomic, sleek design, Adfilic's luggage weighing scale has a hook and different reading modes to choose from. It also comes with a 100% Money-Back Guarantee. Customers can likewise take advantage of their special discount by entering coupon code 6offscal at checkout.

Meanwhile, majority of the customers who tried the product commented that the luggage scale was easy to use. They find the scale to be of great value at an affordable price and does not compromise the high quality and standards they set. A lot of them said that the scale also lived up to their expectations and that they don't need to worry about excess baggage fees anymore.
