July 02, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Mobile, Ala. ? Mobile leak detection experts are featuring services for leaking pipes this summer. American Leak Detection of Mobile-Biloxi is expecting an increase of leaky pipes this summer because of increased water use.

American Leak Detection expects more water use this summer because of more laundry, more showers from the heat and more types of water usage. With the summer season comes an influx of water through pipes and drains. Increased water usage increases the risk of leaky pipes. American Leak Detection offers repairs for leaky pipes, video camera inspections and diagnosis checkups.

The Mobile plumbers see leaks most commonly from faucets, toilets, water heaters and washing machine hoses. To spot leaks from these spots (except water heaters), the experts recommend that residential clients will usually smell something musty or moldy. For all of these water leaks, clients will find more water in the area than normal. If clients find these problems and more, American Leak Detection is ready with a solution.

American Leak Detection has video camera sewage inspections to help clients spot any problems without the damage. Video camera inspections are non-invasive, accurate and cost-effective for spotting problems. With a video camera inspection, clients do not have to worry about any further damage happening to their homes, and they are guaranteed a problem spotted paired with a solution.

American Leak Detection recommends clients perform DIY leak tests before calling professionals. Performing the DIY tests could save clients money instead of hiring a professional to look at the problem if there is none. The company's website has links showing how clients can perform DIY leak tests like the bucket test, the meter test and more. If clients have performed these tests, come up with a negative result, but still feel something is wrong, they are advised to call a professional like American Leak Detection.
