

Executive Business Centers Offers Denver Office Space

July 15, 2019

Denver, Colorado - July 15, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Executive Business Centers in Colorado recently discussed office space cost and stated that they offer all inclusive office experiences. The company has Denver office space available in Belleview and Prentice and state that their space is a much more affordable option for many companies who need to host conferences and other meetings.

Danielle Marsiglia, a representative for the company says, "We have fully furnished private offices that include flexible terms, and we can even provide businesses with professional receptionist services. Our packages include high speed internet, access to an all-in-one workspace and phone service."

Marsiglia says that for businesses that do not have enough space to host corporate meetings with out of town clientele or associates for instance, their space is a good solution. They can also provide companies with virtual services such as mail handling, DTC mailing addresses, local phone numbers and answering services.

The company's website provides more information about their business space, as well as information about pricing and amenities. Marsiglia says that any company visiting the Denver area or those in the area who simply do not have enough office space to hold conferences and other meetings can use the company's online contact form to reach out to them to learn more.

"We want to make it simple for businesses to host their meetings and other events," she adds. "Our costs are much more affordable than renting an entire office space, and are particularly beneficial for those who only need their space for a short time. We can work out short or long term solutions, depending on the need of each individual business."

Marsiglia adds that they have space for two people or up to 30 and guests have 10 rooms from which to choose, each of which provides flat screen television projection, high speed WI-FI, phone and white boards. She states that they can also accommodate walk-in clients for those who are only in town for a few days and do not want to fully commit to a long term solution.

?All of our conference rooms have access to notary services, scanners, copiers and other business services and companies can enjoy these amenities without having to worry with a long term contract,? she says.

Marsiglia says that the company prides itself on offering a personalized approach to business space needs. The company?s website provides detailed information about the spaces and packages that they have available, as well as their onsite support for those who need it.

The company adds that their Denver office space solutions are conveniently located near I-25 and I-225, at the gateway to the Denver Tech Center and just 20 minutes from downtown Denver. The company has spaces available just half an hour from the Denver airport, which they state is perfect for those who are flying associates in from other areas.

Executive Business Centers has been a staple in the Denver area for more than three decades. The locally owned and operated company treats clients with a personalized touch and says that companies will deal directly with owners which will help them to feel more at ease.

The company?s business space offers a professional environment, complete with receptionist staff and a view of the Rocky Mountains. They state that they can offer a comfortable environment and since they are not located directly downtown, businesses will have the added benefit of avoiding background noise or being too crowded with other businesses.

Those who are interested can learn more about the space that the company has available for rent, as well as their rental terms and costs associated with these professional services by visiting them on their website. The website offers a list of their available spaces and packages, including images of the conference rooms that are available so companies can determine which specific room best fits their needs. Those who are interested can fill out the online contact information or reach out to the company directly by phone or email to learn more.
