

Announcing a New Site for Florida Propeller Shop

July 22, 2019

July 22, 2019 -
Seattle, WA - Aviation Business Consultants International (ABCI) today announced the launch of an updated website for Aviation Propellers, Inc. (AvProps.)

A new web site is a great opportunity to reintroduce a company, and to expand visibility into new markets.

Aviation Propellers Inc. (AvProps.com) has launched a refreshed website with the help of Aviation Marketing by ABCI.

?The new site more accurately reflects the precision, quality, and commitment to updated tools and techniques the company values, while reflecting its roots.? said Thomas Gaither.

AvProps.com Old Web Site

The new web site includes images and blog posts that celebrate AvProp?s fascinating history, including the inaugural article ?Meet Daisy, And Learn about AvProps US Military Roots,? which introduces pinup art commissioned by Gaither to honor the roots of the company and commemorate his father?s nose-art collection.

Just after the end of World War II, Propeller Service of Miami Inc. (which was later acquired by Aviation Propellers Inc.) overhauled many military and transport type aircraft acquired a vast quantity of surplus parts, some of which are available for sale today.

Then as now, Aviation Propellers, Inc. is known for out-of the ordinary service for grounded customers. They keep a good supply of loaner propellers to get customers back in the air faster, and in many cases, flying to their customer?s location to make repairs of the aircraft itself, eliminating the removal and shipping of the propeller.

AvProps have sent technicians and parts throughout Central and South America to get a grounded aircraft flying again, even if all that was required was an eddy current inspection, tightening of a loose blade or servicing an oil leak on a new propeller under warranty.

Aviation Propellers, Inc. is a distributor for most propeller manufacturers in the world. The management team includes professionals with extensive experience in the propeller field. Our management has focused on identifying and employing highly motivated individuals with a strong dedication to quality and safety.

They keep up with technical changes and requirements, including a recent completion of an extensive re-certification process by Hartzell Propeller Inc.

Customers can schedule service by calling AvProps at (305) 688-6030, emailing info@avprops.com or by visiting the new website, AvProps.com.
