A demolition company in Chicago, McDonagh Demolition, Inc. preserved a historic structure as they were working on one of their demolition projects. Goldblatt?s Building Water Tower, estimated to have been constructed in the 1920?s, was preserved by the company as they were demolishing the building. Using two cranes, simultaneously, the staff removed the water tower carefully and preserved it. The company representative said, ?The process was full of challenges by the expertise of our staff ensured that the tower was extracted carefully and this piece of history was preserved.?
