August 12, 2019 -

Spartan Plumbing, Heating & Cooling, based in Tucson, Arizona, has announced that they now have financing assistance available for those who require a new air conditioning unit installation. The company also wants to point out that, in some cases, Spartan can help homeowners get a zero percent APR interest rate when they purchase a new air conditioner.

The company has also recently launched a new AC tune-up special in Tucson. This means that customers will be able to get an air conditioner tune-up for just $39.99, which represents a substantial savings compared to the regular charge. Spartan Plumbing, Heating & Cooling regularly offers specials but has a policy of making sure that the promotions are beneficial for both the customers and the company. This special is well timed, as it is a hot summer in Arizona. Homeowners would not want to be without an air conditioning unit at this particular time of year.

Mike Gesty, the spokesperson for Spartan Plumbing, Heating & Cooling, says, "Arizona summers are known for being some of the hottest in all of the world, and certain heat waves have even proven to be deadly! Needless to say, the importance of maintaining a fully functional cooling unit is a top priority when living in Tucson and the greater Southwest region.?

He continues, ?If your air conditioning or cooling unit is 10 years old or older, you could be costing yourself substantial amounts of money each year by continuing to run an antiquated, energy-inefficient model. In such cases, replacing your AC unit with one of our high-efficiency models could be in the best interest of you and your wallet. And now, we even have financing options available.?

Spartan Plumbing, Heating & Cooling offers a number of quality energy-saving brands, such as Trane, Lennox, Rheem, and Heil. They have been serving homeowners and property owners in the Tucson area for more than three decades and know that most of the failures involving an air-conditioning unit occur during the summer when the equipment is working overtime to combat the heat. Their technicians are knowledgeable and experienced with regards to the repair and installation of AC units.

Meanwhile, the company also offers emergency repair services for air conditioning units because this equipment tends to fail at the worst times, particularly during the Arizona summer months. To ensure that the disruption to your family?s comfort is minimized, the company offers emergency AC services 24/7. They always have a team available that is ready to pick up a call from a customer if and when an emergency occurs.

Spartan Plumbing, Heating & Cooling team members have a lot of experience with regard to HVAC repairs. Whether it?s an emergency repair on a very modern or an old HVAC unit, the teams from Spartan Plumbing are capable of handling it. This is because they have decades of combined experience and they have invested time and resources into the ongoing training of all their technicians, allowing them to stay up to date with cutting edge technology, procedures, diagnostics, and AC tune-ups.

Mike Gesty also wants to point out that they are a licensed HVAC contractor, and this offers several benefits. First of all, with a licensed contractor, homeowners and property owners are assured that the team providing the services have been professionally trained in their field. The procedure for obtaining a license is extensive and intricate, requiring dedication to the craft and several years of experience. With a licensed contractor, clients are also assured that everything will be done safely. And licensed contractors are also trained with regards to the legal issues involving the operation of HVAC systems.

Spartan Plumbing, Heating & Cooling is a locally owned and operated business in Tucson, Arizona that was established in 1987. Due to its dedication to providing the best customer service, the company was given the presidential award for business excellence in 2003.
