Brosix is a secure instant messenger app designed to help teams, businesses and other organizations streamline and enhance their internal communication. With the launch, their updates to their secure instant messenger will be featured on Product Hunt.

Stefan Chekanov, co-founder and CEO of Brosix Inc., explains, "Brosix is a chat application designed to help businesses, teams and other organizations streamline and improve their internal communication. Team members on your Brosix network have access to a first-rate application loaded with collaboration features such as text, voice and video chat, secure file transfers, screen-sharing, virtual whiteboards and much more."

He adds, "Team members can use Brosix through Windows, Web, iOS, Android, Mac and Linux applications. Brosix also gives you full administrative control over your network. You can customize your network to fit your team's needs by grouping users, controlling their contact lists, and enabling or disabling specific features."

The primary features of the Brosix instant messenger include: having a private team network, full control over users, security, all-in-one package, zero configuration and maintenance, and increased efficiency. Users of Brosix are assured of having a private team network because the team networks are only accessible to approved users, thus offering a secure and focused communication.

This secure instant messenger also allows full control over the users' contact lists, privileges, accessible features and more for better communication. And with full end-to-end encryption on all communication channels, total security is assured.

Those who have already tried using the secure instant messenger app have mostly positive things to say about it. For example, David F. says, "Since switching to Brosix, our support costs down by 8% and our programming costs have also decreased by 5%." Marius S. says, "We offer unified communication solutions to customers. Your product is the best in the IM/collaboration space due to security.? And Heather V. says, ?Brosix is an excellent corporate messaging program that we utilize as one of our primary methods of internal business daily communications.?

Brosix was established in 2006 to develop secure and easy-to-use communication tools for home and enterprises. With the Brosix instant messenger, security is a top priority.
