There are many problems that cause stress for homeowners when they try to sell their properties in the open market. Different processes at the outset are stressful enough. A homeowner must find a realtor. The property has to be inspected and evaluated. These are paid services that the homeowner should account for. The realtor will charge a hefty commission when the house gets sold. Prior to that is a plethora of expenses, including the costs of staging, listing, sponsored posts, advertising, repair and renovation in some cases. A homeowner spends thousands of dollars even before there is a genuine offer. Despite the numerous expenses, many homeowners in the city do not get a closing offer after waiting for months. The delay adds to the stress. There are many times when a homeowner ponders over the possibility of their property not getting sold at all. Here's a recent press release they published.

Reducing ask price is often perceived as a way to entice more buyers. This can lead to a net loss for many homeowners. Investing in home improvements is often proposed by realtors as a definitive way to impress more buyers. This too can lead to a net loss if the ask price does not get appreciated by as much, if not more, and there is also the delay caused by renovation or remodeling. Any homeowner who needs a quick sale cannot rely on the open market, listing services and realtors. Homeowners who may have some time to spare should also consider a much simpler and quicker alternative. That is what Dependable Homebuyers offers and it has earned a reputation of being a fair purchaser with an unprecedentedly expedited selling process.

Evan Roberts, the owner of the real estate investment company, has said that it was always their objective to assist sellers. He and his team are fully aware of the challenges endured by most homeowners. They wanted to resolve the problems. In the end, they have succeeded in not just managing the issues but circumventing most of them entirely. No realtors and listings are involved when homeowners contact Roberts and his team directly. No third party is engaged throughout the process. Homeowners spend no money to facilitate the sale. There is no commission or closing cost. The company pays the closing cost. Homeowners in Fort Myers can sell their houses to Dependable Homebuyers in seven to ten business days if they want a quick sale.
